Hughes Plans Record-Making Trip To Hearing in Controversial Plane; Elliott Roosevelt Aid Is Revealed

U. S. Wheat Target Set At 75 Million Acres in '48

Goal Is Highest Ever Urged on Farmers; Record Crop Expected

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday called for the largest wheat acreage ever sown in the United States for next year.

The goal was set at 75 million acres. This year's goal was set at 70 million acres.

The goal for the five previous years averaged 62.4 million acres.

Farmers responded to the Government call last year by planting 10 per cent over the goal, or 77 million acres, on which an all-time record crop, estimated at 1435 million bushels, is now being harvested.

Expect Another Record

If the same response is made next year, the tremendous acreage of 82½ million bushels will be planted to wheat.

Because of the high prices for wheat realized this year in spite of the huge yield, Agriculture Department experts expect another bumper crop in 1948, perhaps another all-time record.

In announcing the new goals, the department explained "that under normal peacetime conditions a much smaller planted acreage would be desirable.

"Because the need for exports to meet world food shortages continues, however, it appears desirable to maintain a high acreage in 1948," it added.

Price $2.04 July 15

"Consideration was also given, in arriving at the desired goal, to the fact that this year's late wet season may make more land in the Corn Belt available for seeding to wheat this fall."

The department, however, warned farmers in dry land areas to exercise caution in "plowing up sod lands not suitable for sustained farming, or planting wheat on land that should remain fallow."

The announcement also reminded wheat growers that "prices for wheat harvested in 1948 will be supported at 90 per cent of parity as required by law."

The parity price for wheat announced Tuesday by the Department of Agriculture was $2.04 as of July 15. The support price under this figure would be about $1.83 a bushel.

The announcement revealed a change of mind in the department within recent weeks. A short time ago it was planned to cut next year's goal to about 68 million acres. The department was prompted to retire overworked wheat land subject to erosion at that time.

The prospect for a relatively short corn crop this fall led the department to announce the higher wheat goal.

The department also asked for higher rye goals for next year. Farmers were urged to plant 2.3 million acres in rye, or 347,000 more than this year. Rye acreage has declined steadily for several years, due to competition from other better yielding crops.

With average yields, rye production next year would be about 27 million bushels, compared with a little over 25 million forecast for this year.

Potato goals were the same as this year, or 2,370,000 acres.

Bricker's Life Threatened in 3 Telephone Calls

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Authorities revealed today that the life of U. S. Senator John W. Bricker was threatened in a series of three telephone calls last night and indicated they knew the identity of the woman caller.

Suburban Upper Arlington Police Chief Frank D. Cary said "Bricker and I have a pretty good understanding where the calls came from. He and I have agreed to work this thing out."

The caller, according to Mrs. R. M. Day, mother of Mrs. Bricker, phoned three times about the dinner hour.

"You tell that son-in-law of yours we're going to get him and this isn't maybe," Mrs. Day quoted the caller.

Business Firm Gets Many Sales From Post Want Ad

Businessmen — don't overlook a Post classified ad as a means of bringing in substantial extra sales. An oil-burner firm on Third Street N.W., ran a three-line ad in The Post, scheduled to run 15 times, and reported that at least 25 sales resulted first day. On the 15-time insertion the ad cost only 23c per line, so the three-line notice cost just 69c daily.

Walkout Near At Ford Plants As Talk Fails

Detroit, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Union and Ford Motor Co. negotiators failed in a two-hour meeting today to reach "any agreement" on a contract dispute threatening a walkout of 108,000 Ford workers, and union officials tentatively set the strike for Tuesday morning.

Richard T. Leonard, United Automobile Workers (CIO) vice president and Ford department director, and John S. Bugas, Ford industrial relations director, left the conference looking glum and feeling pessimistic about chances of averting the strike in some 40 Ford plants across the Nation.

A UAW spokesman who attended the unsuccessful last ditch session said: "Things really look bad now."

Strike Date Advanced

Although another eleventh-hour meeting was arranged for 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, both union and Ford officials seemed to have little hope it could iron out the double-barreled dispute over a pension plan and a "John L. Lewis" contract clause sidestepping penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Leonard threw up his hands upon emerging from the conference room and said in a strained voice:

"Nothing doing. No progress whatsoever."

Date of the walkout, which would be the first major labor tie-up of a "Big Three" auto producer since the 113-day General Motors strike ended in March, 1946, was

Auto Industry Silent as GM Boosts Prices

Auto Worker Union Calls 2-6% Hikes Inflationary Move

Detroit, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—General Motors Corp. today increased the price of all passenger cars and Chevrolet trucks by 2 to 6 per cent.

A statement from the office of Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, described the price boost as "another large stride down the inflationary road leading to depression and mass unemployment." It added:

"Were the company genuinely concerned in cooperating in the national effort to halt inflation, it could well afford to offer price reductions several times as large as the price increases which it has now inuicted on the consumer."

The rest of the auto industry eyed the increases narrowly but without immediate comment.

The Ford Motor Co., GM's chief competitor in the low price field, had no official comment.

However, a spokesman recalled a statement by Henry Ford 2d a fortnight ago when he said the firm "hoped" to absorb rising steel costs without marking up the price tags on its cars.

Chrysler Corp., the other member of the automotive "big three," also made no comment.

But the industry expressed open interest in General Motors' move, not entirely unexpected in view of the conviction in automotive circles that rising steel prices eventually would be reflected in autos.

GMC Trucks Unaffected

President C. E. Wilson, in announcing the boost by General Motors, said specific increases by models and body styles were to be announced individually by Cadillac, Buick, Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Chevrolet divisions.

Cadillac raised the price of its models from $66 to $168, Buick from $60 to $139.

Chevrolet trucks were also blanketed with passenger cars under the increase, but GMC trucks were not affected, since price increases ranging from $17 to $162 were set for them earlier in the week.

Nonautomotive products, Wilson said, would be increased in price along the same general pattern as autos and trucks.

No general increase in prices of automotive service parts was made.

Wilson blamed "the inflation that has occurred" in labor and material prices for the general increase.

Highest Income in Decade

The announcement came three days after General Motors reported a net income for the first half of the year of $147,622,834, highest in a decade except during the war.

Wilson admitted the six-month earnings were "reasonably satisfactory" but contended that they

Decision Is Unprecedented

U. N. Council Calls for End Of Dutch-Indonese Conflict

Lake Success, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—The United Nations Security Council tonight called upon the Dutch and Indonesians to cease fighting immediately and settle their disputes by arbitration or other peaceful means.

The unprecedented decision was reached after only two days of debate and marked the first time in U. N. history that the peace agency moved directly to stop warfare.

The vote was 8 to 0, with Belgium, France and Britain abstaining. Britain stressed that its abstention should not be construed as a veto.

Veto Avoided

Alexandre Parodi of France said he would have preferred to vote against the resolution, but abstained because his veto would have killed it.

Faris El Khoury, of Syria, Council chairman, immediately instructed the U. N. staff to communicate the council's decisions to the governments of The Netherlands and the Republic of Indonesia.

The Council adjourned at 8:15 p. m. (EDT).

In the final stages of a five-hour session, delegates rejected a Russian amendment which directed that Dutch and Indonesian troops should be withdrawn to positions they held at the start of military operations as a step toward the peaceful settlement. The vote here was 2 to 0, with only Poland supporting the Soviet Union and the other nine members abstaining.

Passage of the Resolution, sponsored by the United States and amended by the French and Poles, also served to give Security Council recognition to the Republic of Indonesia. In an adjoining chamber, the economic and social council also voted recognition to the republic by inviting it to a trade and employment conference in Havana next November.

Dutch Opposition Seen

Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, Dutch ambassador, told the council in the midst of the speedy discussions that his government would accept an invitation to end hostilities but would oppose any order from the council.

nesian Republic has "no objection whatsoever" to having the current Indonesian hostilities brought before the United Nations Security Council, the official Republican radio at Jogjakarta, said.)

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko earlier labeled a United States offer of its "good offices" in settling the dispute as a "means of circumventing" the UN.

War Material Found in U. S. Berlin Zone

American Investigators Say Big Stores Were For Foreign Power

Berlin, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—The American Military Government announced today it had discovered large quantities of war material, which apparently had been manufactured for an unidentified "foreign power," secreted in stockpiles in two German factories in the United States sector of Berlin.

The two factories were closed immediately and the factory officials taken into custody.

An Allied Control Authority law aimed at demilitarizing Germany forbids German manufacture, transportation or storage of war materials. Violators are subject to the death penalty.

Although officials declined to name the "foreign power" mentioned as intended recipient of the products discovered, it was pointed out that Berlin is an inland in the Soviet zone of Germany and that to move goods out of the Soviet zone would require a Soviet license.

Semicompleted gyroscope motors used in aircraft, submarines and tanks, wings and body parts of Link trainers, theodolites for use in observing the trajectories of guided missiles such as the German V-1 and V-2, submarine periscopes and similar precision instruments were found in the Friedenau and Mariendorf plants of Askaniawerke, one of the biggest general scientific instrument businesses in the world.

Askania, which now employs between 700 and 1000 workmen in Berlin, has branches in other sections of Germany and foreign countries and during the war was engaged almost entirely in manufacturing, designing and developing scientific instruments for the German armed forces.

The factories have been partially occupied by troops.

Britain Wants U. S. to Relax Terms of Loan

Could Ease Drain On Dollars Buying In Her Dominions

London, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—Britain is asking the United States to relax further the terms of the Anglo-American loan agreement to ease the drain on her borrowed dollars and lighten her economic plight, a government informant said today.

He reported that Britain was asking a change in the $3,750,000,000 loan clause which prevents her from increasing imports from the "sterling bloc" dominions at the expense of imports from the United States.

Meanwhile, well-informed sources said Prime Minister Atlee would disclose to the House of Commons next Wednesday the details of immediate and large-scale cuts in food rations, some of which already are more meager than during the war.

As Much As 50 Per Cent

The Daily Express and Daily Telegraph said the cut will be as much as 50 per cent in some items. They mentioned especially meat, butter, grain and tinned foods. Meat already is limited to about enough for one meal a week.

Britain wants U. S. approval to step up British purchases, especially of food, from the dominions where she could pay in her own currency. Her purchases in the United States have to be paid for in borrowed dollars.

On July 22, the United States approved a slight relaxation of the agreement permitting Britain to buy more from her non-self-governing colonies and less from the U. S. Such dollar-conserving steps coincided with an emergency program of smaller armed forces, less food and more work being readied by the labor government.

As one means of cutting foreign expenditure, the Foreign Office announced "urgent" consideration was being given to decreasing or withdrawing British garrisons in

B-29s Roar Over Capital After Flight

One-Stop Journey From Tokyo Marks 40th Anniversary Of Army Air Force

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A massed flight of huge B-29 bombers, flying here on a single stop from Tokyo, roared over the Nation's Capital precisely at noon yesterday to highlight the global observance of the Army Air Force's fortieth anniversary.

Seven of the black-bellied, silver-topped Superfortresses landed at Andrews Field, in nearby Maryland, 25 minutes later. With but a single stop at Anchorage, Alaska, the flight covered the 7000-mile span in 31 hours 24 minutes' flying time.

More than 5000 spectators were on hand at Andrews Field to greet the longest and fastest one-stop mass flight ever made by heavy bombers. The eighth member of the 492d Bomber Squadron, delayed at Anchorage by engine trouble, also landed safely at Andrews some four hours after its sister ships.

35,000 See Show

More than 35,000 air-minded Greater Washingtonians swarmed over Bolling Field, where the AAF put on a spectacular demonstration of speed, acrobatics, air-ground rescue and fire-fighting operations.

Between shows, the Bolling Field spectators—a majority of whom were in their teens or younger—surged around the vast array of exhibits.

The dual Washington area celebration was one of the larger demonstrations held all over the country, and virtually in every part of the world, by the Strategic Air Command. Air Force headquarters here said it was the greatest demonstration in American aviation history.

The Royal Air Force also paid its respects to the AAF with a flight of 16 Lincoln bombers from Washington to New York and back.

General Sounds Warning

Together with the show of aerial might, speed and skill, Air Forces Day also was the occasion for fresh warning that "Air power is peace power."

In Germany, Generals Lucius D. Clay, occupation commander, declared:

"The thousands of ocean miles protecting the United States disappeared in a cloud of atomic smoke over Hiroshima."

"There is but one assurance that this atomic weapon produced by American ingenuity might not be used against ourselves. This assurance lies in development of a formidable and modern air force which no nation, however bold, would dare to challenge."

In Detroit, Gen. George C. Kenny, chief of the Strategic Air Command, said:

"It would be national suicide to neglect the United States air defenses. The world is not yet at peace. High military forces are standing by waiting for orders. A powerful United States Air Force is our best guaranty of security in these chaotic times."

Mark of Equality

The fortieth birthday of the Air Force occurred six days after President Truman signed the Armed Forces Unification Act, by which the Air Force became a

War Department Files Tell Story Of 'High' Pressure On Air Staff Chief

By Marv Spargo
Post Reporter

Documentary evidence from War Department files yesterday showed that within one week's time Col. Elliott Roosevelt succeeded in reversing a decision of Gen. Barney Giles, Chief of Army Air Staff, not to buy the Howard Hughes photo reconnaissance plane, the F-11.

Within three more days, the Senate War Investigating Committee learned yesterday, General H. H. Arnold, commanding general Army Air Forces, gave Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, Assistant Chief of Staff, a verbal order "to get Hughes a contract."

War Department documents were full of references to "pressure from high places" and "political background of the F-11 project."

Warning in Files

The situation was such, official files showed, that on September 29, 1943, less than a month after the contract was ordered, Maj. Gen. Charles E. Branshaw, commanding general of Wright Field, Ohio, warned:

"It is concluded that in view of the amount of money involved and many uncertainties connected with it, that this project will probably, at a later date, draw congressional attention and possibly public criticism upon the Army Air Forces."

So far the Government has spent some 22 million dollars on this project and has received one prototype plane to be taken apart for testing, and the wreckage of another plane which Hughes crashed last summer.

The second photo reconnaissance plane manufactured by Hughes has not yet been received by the Army Air Forces. Another reconnaissance plane, the XF-12, was ordered about the same time from Republic. One of these was delivered to the Army Air Forces in February last year, and one in May of this year. Neither of the two planes ordered in 1943 was ever flown in the war.

In Boston yesterday, Roosevelt said he would "say my piece Monday. He said he would appear voluntarily.

Meyer Makes Splash

The name of the late President Roosevelt's son also popped immediately into the testimony of John W. Meyer, flashy publicity agent for Hughes, who took the stand late yesterday afternoon amidst a hubbub of cameras and popping flashguns of photographers.

Meyer, who flew here from France to testify, said he knew Elliott.

He said he couldn't remember when he first met Elliott, and anyway, "I've given all that information to Mr. Rogers and Mr. Flanagan in the closed hearing."

(He referred to William Rogers, committee counsel, and Francis Flanagan, chief investigator, who went over with him his detailed records of expenses for entertaining Government big shots and gorgeous party girls.)

"Never Padded" Expenses

Some members of the committee have disclosed that in that secret testimony Meyer claimed to have introduced Elliott to his beautiful actress wife, Faye Emerson, and that it was "a question of love at first sight."

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked Meyer if he had ever "padded" his expense account to Hughes in the entertainment of public officials connected with agencies having to do with plane contracts.

"Never. Positively never." shouted Meyer, "I am very certain about that."

A few days ago Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug, whose name was mentioned frequently in Meyer's expense accounts, charged that the records were "a swindle of the grossest kind."

"Then you didn't pad the bills

Brewster Asks Clark to Probe Hughes Charge

By Bob Considine
By International News Service

Senator Brewster (R., Me.), chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee, yesterday invited Attorney General Clark to investigate "blackmail" charges leveled against him by Howard Hughes. At the Justice Department, a spokesman said Attorney General Tom C. Clark had "no comment."

This development in the stormy inquiry into the Hughes wartime plane contracts came after John W. Meyer, Hughes' party-throwing publicity man, had testified briefly.

Brewster, whose long-distance feud with Hughes has given colorful side-play to the investigation, offered to step out of his role as committee chairman and appear before the panel "as a plain American citizen" to answer Hughes' charges.

Earlier, Hughes was quoted by the Los Angeles Examiner as saying that he would ask the Justice Department to investigate the "relationship of Senator Owen Brewster and Pan American Airways."

This was a follow-up to the Hughes "blackmail" charge of some days ago in which he said that Brewster had offered to call off the Senate investigation if Hughes would agree to merge TWA with Pan American and sup-

Truman Signs D. C. Rent Bill Extension

30-Day Continuance Also Given for Filing Decontrol Requests

President Truman yesterday signed into law a bill to extend District rent control to March 31, 1948.

The bill will keep rent controls here one month beyond those throughout the rest of the Nation, which will expire February 29.

District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell said he didn't expect any major changes in the conduct of his office as a result of the extension.

A 30-day extension to August 30 for filing rent decontrol applications also was granted yesterday to owners and operators of hotels, tourist homes and motor courts; and to owners of new housing construction or conversion completed on or after February 1, 1947.

Housing Expediter Frank Creedon said the extension was ordered because many landlords are not yet familiar with the new rent regulations.

A regulation issued July 1 by the Housing Expediter provided a 30-day period for applications. The regulation now is amended to extend to August 30.

Meanwhile, owners of 99 River Terrace housing units in the 3200 block of East Capitol st. filed a petition with the District Rent Control Administration yesterday asking average 13 per cent rent boosts. Present rents range from $47.50 to $56 per month.

U. S., Britain Delay Ruhr Coal Talks

London, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—Authoritative government informants said today that British-American talks on boosting Ruhr coal production will be delayed until after Prime Minister Attlee places details of Britain's economic position before Parliament next week.

The long-scheduled conference, put off more than once owing to disagreement on the scope of the agenda, is due to take place in Washington.

Hopes to Silence Critics of XF-11 By Performance on Flight Wednesday

(Copyright, 1947, by The Washington Post)

Howard Hughes is planning a sensational stroke in his controversy with the Senate War Investigating Committee, The Washington Post learned last night.

While debate rages about his wartime aviation contracts, the millionaire aircraft builder will take off from California in one of the much-discussed planes he is under contract to build for the Government, and race across the continent in time to testify next Wednesday before the Senate investigators.

The plane is the speedy photo-reconnaissance craft known as the XF-11.

Reason For Delay

Despite possible denials—and barring last-minute change of plans—it was learned this was the real reason that Hughes angrily refused to appear here sooner to answer questions about the status of the plane contracts he holds and upon which millions have already been spent.

His plans were made for the flight terminating here Wednesday, with feverish grooming of the plane until Tuesday.

It is Hughes' fervent hope, it was learned, that on the transcontinental flight he will break all records for that type of aircraft, and thus silence his critics before the Senate Investigating Committee who have been casting doubt on the work of the plane in wartime.

It would be a great personal feather in the cap for Hughes, whose ability to design and produce experimental plane models under Government contract has been heatedly challenged by witnesses before the Senate committee.

Injured on First Test

One of the points of dispute has been the claims of maximum speed for the XF-11. In the original specifications turned over to the Government its top speed was put at 485 miles an hour. Army documents since then have referred to a maximum of 446 m.p.h.

This is a question that Hughes intends to settle in his flight from the Coast. Up to now it remained, of necessity, a moot point. The first model of the reconnaissance ship, being test-piloted by Hughes himself, cracked up on its maiden flight July 7, 1946, at Culver City, Calif. This accident resulted in serious injuries to the young millionaire, and for a time no hope was held for his life.

U. S. Paid for Lost Plane

But Hughes recovered, the Government paid for the lost plane according to contract, and work was started on a duplicate ship, also at Government expense. On April 5 of this year it was announced that the second plane had been completed and successfully test piloted by Hughes. Since then final adjustments have been in progress.

For the last several days Hughes has engaged in a long-distance verbal battle with the War Investigating Committee. On Thursday the committee issued a subpena to compel Hughes to come here at once to testify. Subcommittee Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) directed that the subpena be flown to Los Angeles for service by a United States mar-

They Ate Too Much

Father Who Tortured Children Faces Mental Examination

Towson, Md., Aug. 1 (A.P.)—A psychiatric examination was ordered for 40-year-old William H. Hoffman today after he was convicted of charges that he forced his three young children to kneel for as long as two hours on their bare knees in salt.

Mrs. Ore Lee Hoffman testified before Circuit Judge John B. Gontrum that her husband made the children stand at the table while eating and it was necessary to feed them before he came home from work because he complained they ate too much.

The children are 5, 7 and 9 years old.

Mrs. Hoffman said he once tied one of the children to a tree, he often prohibited her from feeding them, and he once beat the 9-year-old daughter with a board for standing on the running board of a neighbor's car.

Judge Gontrum said it was one of the most aggravated cases of cruelty ever to come before him and withheld sentence pending the mental examination. Testimony showed Hoffman, born in Hungary, served 13 years in the United States Army.

A-Bomb Is No U. S. Patent

One hears much about the danger of foreign scientists acquiring our atomic energy secrets.

The atom bomb is the result of a half century of spectacular scientific progress, most of it contributed by so-called "foreigners."

The names Thomson, Rutherford, Bohr, Chadwick, Joliot-Curie, Hahn, Meitner, Frisch, Einstein, Fermi, Zlilard stand out like beacons in this momentous discovery. All are foreigners or foreign born.

A foreigner, Nils Bohr of Denmark, brought the famous Meitner formula to the United States in the nick of time.

A foreigner got President Roosevelt interested.

Foreigners worked day and night on the Manhattan project.

And it was the best kept secret in history.

All of this is explained in detail in the 12 PAGE ATOMIC ENERGY SUPPLEMENT WHICH WILL APPEAR TOMORROW.

It is a fascinating and very readable section. You will want to preserve it.

Split Switch Causes Mishap

Streetcar Collision Injures 24; 2 Killed in Riverdale Crash

A head-on crash of two streetcars at 4 p. m. yesterday at North Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave. injured 24 persons, four of them seriously.

It was the second serious traffic accident in Greater Washington during the day. Two persons were killed and two others injured, one critically, when a car plunged into a telephone pole on Finn's lane near Riverdale, Md., early yesterday.

The streetcars were going in opposite directions on Massachusetts ave.

According to police, one of the streetcars, going east on Massachusetts ave., split a switch at N. Capitol st. and instead of proceeding ahead, swung left into the path of a streetcar westbound on Massachusetts ave.

Police said the streetcar which took a wrong turn was operated by Howard R. Thompson, 24, 1243 B st. se. His car knocked the westbound car from the tracks and seriously injured its operator, Frank J. Brown, 27, 24 Willingsboro rd., Alexandria, Va. Brown was ad-or knock down something on them?" pressed Ferguson.

Elliott Roosevelt 'Pressure' For Hughes Plane Revealed

"No. I should have but I didn't," replied Meyer.

Calls Salary Low

"Why?" asked the chairman.

"Because I get such a low salary and I work 24 hours a day all the time."

He said he got $10,400 a year—or rather $200 a week from Hughes and a $500-a-month expense account from TWA, in which Hughes has a heavy interest.

He said he did not "pad" his TWA expense account either.

Honesty Proclaimed

"No, I'm very honest, believe me, senator," the Hollywood character who once aided Errol Flynn in his "public relations," exclaimed.

"You've reported all this on your income tax?" Ferguson asked.

Looking over at the handsome blond committee counsel, Meyer replied:

"I'm sure Mr. Rogers has a photostat of my income tax returns. He has a photostat of everything else, so why should he miss that."

Rogers smiled.

Hughes Wanted Details

Meyer cleared up the mystery of why he kept such elaborate expense accounts, with names, addresses and even telephone numbers. He said Hughes told him to keep them that way.

"And you followed his directions?" Ferguson queried.

"To the letter," Meyer asserted.

"He told you he wanted names, addresses and telephone numbers?"

"Yes."

Then Meyer explained that sometimes he let the accounts go for two or three months and then tried to remember the data, so he "might have" had the wrong names at places on the wrong dates.

"But they were satisfactory to Mr. Hughes," he added belligerently," and he was the man I was working for."

He told the committee Hughes had given him "discretion" to entertain any way he wanted to.

Meyer was asked to appear again at 9:30 a. m. today.

It was Major General Echols who traced for the committee the long history of the XF-11, which was known at various stages as the D-2 and D-5 plane.

Back to December 1939

As early as December 5, 1939, Echols said, Hughes agreed to submit plans for his airplane to the Army Air Forces. In its various stages it was called a pursuit plane, a bomber and a fighter plane before it developed into the reconnaissance craft.

Always, even at the time Arnold ordered a contract given to Hughes, the plane was made of duramold, a plywood type of construction glued together in small strips with a special resin glue.

The Army Air Forces always opposed wooden or plywood construction, Echols said.

After the contract was given, Hughes finally agreed to make the plane of metal.

Jones Memo Recalled

Echols said that in June of 1942 he was interested in having the Air Forces purchase two of the Hughes planes for experimental purposes at a cost of $500,000 each. The plan fell through when Hughes wanted to be reimbursed for the three million dollars he said he had already invested in developing the plane.

He said that until he had seen the memorandum drafted by Jesse Jones, the RFC chief, to President Roosevelt praising the plane he did not know that there had been any "outside interest" in it. The memo was sent by Jones on June 27, 1942. It was referred by the late President to General Arnold with the notation "What is there in this?"

Echols said he heard little of the plane until June 30, 1943, when General Arnold asked that it be flown to Bolling Field for expert examination.

Hughes replied the plane had been taken apart for modifications and could not be flown for at least 30 days.

Finally Turned Down

Finally on August 24 the Army Air Forces made up its mind the plane was not wanted. General Arnold directed that "no further action be taken to encourge" the development of the plane and the consequent diversion of material from other projects.

"Then what?" questioned Ferguson.

"Well," replied Echols, "there had been a good deal of complaint about our photo-reconnaisance planes from the various theaters of operation.

"Colonal Elliott Roosevelt came to the United States and General Arnold sent him on a month's tour of plane plants, inspecting experimental planes.

Order Reversed

"He was ordered to submit a report on which one he thought would best answer the needs. He went to various plants, returned and reported to General Arnold that the Hughes plane, modified, would be the most suitable type."

Accordingly on August 31, Echols issued a memorandum stating that General Arnold had ordered him verbally to take steps to get Hughes a contract for photographic airplanes.

He stressed the fact that deliveries of other planes in the Los Angeles area would have to be cut.

The memo addressed to Brig. Gen. D. W. Chillaw, is as follows:

Echols Cites Protest

On September 2, 1943, Echols sent a memorandum to Arnold pointing out why he did not favor giving Hughes a contract for the XF-11 plane. He spoke of the inevitable delays and said "the most critical of all. was the manpower shortage on the West Coast."

"If this airplane is put into the area some other airplane would have to come out," he warned.

"Boiled down," he wrote, "the basic problem hinges around the following general factors:

A. Colonel Roosevelt states that Hughes proposed airplane is the only airplane existent or under relatively immediate development which will do the job he wants to do.

"b. If so, what quantities are necessary and when?"

No Effect on Arnold

He added:

"While it is not within the mine the requirements for specific province of this office to detertactical aircraft nor to 'talk down' the need of thi sairplane as a type, nevertheless, and all things considered, the previous recommendations made by this office and approved by the Chief of Air Staff should remain unchanged."

Echols said he subsequently had a conversation with Arnold.

"He told me he had heard all the pros and cons and to go ahead and get the plane," Echols testified.

"Well, he certainly had heard you con," said Ferguson, "there's no doubt about that."

"Did Elliott Roosevelt have anything to do with procurement, engineering directives and so forth?" queried Ferguson.

"Well, possibly," said Echols.

No Requirements Detailed

Ferguson: "Had you ever brought him back to confer on such matters?"

Echols: "No."

Ferguson: "Were the regular AAF experts consulted about Roosevelt's statement that Hughes had the only suitable plane?"

Echols: "No."

Echols told the committee that at the time he was ordered to get a contract for Hughes, no requirements had bee made out.

He said he knew of no similar case.

But, he pointed out, General Arnold insisted upon the order for 100 of the planes.

"And like a good soldier you obeyed it because it came from a superior officer?," Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.) asked.

"Yes, sir," Ehols replied.

Memo to Wright Field

Echols, Arnold's procurement officer, sent a memorandum to the commanding general of Wright Field on September 3, directing the procurement of 100 airplanes from Hughes.

The memorandum began:

"Following a recommendation from Colonel Elliott Roosevelt to General Arnold to the effect that the Hughes D-5 is the only airplane designed which is suitable for photographic purposes. General Arnold issued verbal instructions to this office that steps would be taken to contract with Hughes for photographic airplanes."

The memo said that the chief of air staff had been notified that because of this, existing schedules in the Los Angeles area might have to be cut.

Ferguson: "What was the purpose of that memorandum?"

Echols: "I should say that since all the experts at Wright Field had been overruled I felt they were entitled to know why they had been overruled."

Kneipp to Ask More Parking Meters in D. C.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said yesterday he would seek the Commissioners' approval for a plan to buy 1700 more parking meters this fiscal year on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Purchase of 435 meters authorized in the 1948 budget will bring the District total to 1350, Keneipp said. This will be less than half the number needed to cover the city's 3000 spaces where parking is permitted one hour or less.

Income $94 a Year

If the city heads approve his plan, the additional meters could be paid for by giving manufacturers a percentage of the meter "take," he said.

Average income to the District Highway fund from each meter now in use here is $94 a year. Latest purchase price for a new meter is about $64. Hence the 1700 meters could be paid for in less than one year, without the need for additional appropriations by Congress, Keneipp estimated.

Installation of meters at all short-time parking spaces would be a big help in easing the city's parking problems, he predicted.

385 Being Installed

Workmen were expected today to complete installation of approximately 385 new meters purchased last May with funds from last year's budget.

These are being placed between H and K sts. nw., from 7th to 13th sts.; on I st. nw., between 7th and 15th sts..; between Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. on 10th st. Secondary business sections away from the center of the city will also be metered if the plan is approved, Keneipp revealed.

Brewster Asks Clark to Probe Hughes' Charge of 'Blackmail' port the Brewster-McCarran bill for a single American flagship line to operate overseas.

After the hearing ended yesterday, Brewster issued a statement, saying:

"If there were a word of truth in the charges now being made by Howard Hughes, they should have been presented to the Attorney General last February at the time of the alleged proposal.

"One does not wait six months where a blackmail charge is involved.

"I will welcome and invite the most thorough exploration of this charge by the Attorney General in justice to all concerned.

"After Hughes finds time to respond to the subpena of the committee and tells his side of the story under oath, I shall be most happy to waive all committee and senatorial privileges and appear before the committee as a plain American citizen under oath.

"After 25 years in public life as a State legislator, as a Governor of Maine, and as a member of Congress and the Senate for the past 12 years, I have long since learned that the life of public men must be an open book."

Brewster said he would write the Attorney General inclosing a copy of his public statement.

The committee had no immediate reaction to Hughes' announcement from Los Angeles that he would appear before the group next Wednesday and "not a day sooner," despite a Senate subpena directing him to appear "forthwith." Ferguson said, "The subpena speaks for itself."

He added that he had talked early yesterday afternoon with Robert Clark, United States marshal at Los Angeles, and had been informed that the subcommittee's subpena had not been served on Hughes up to that time.

Brewster said of the latest barrage of accusations by Hughes:

"He seems strangely reluctant to appear. He must be spending a great deal of time composing releases to the press."

STRIKES—From Page 1

Walkout Near At Ford Plants

moved ahead one day by union strategists.

Approved Necessary

A union spokesman said the workers would report at Ford plants Tuesday morning and walk out in a body after two or three hours at the job if no settlement was reached.

Earlier, the same spokesman who said he was talking for Leonard, said, "if today's meeting gets us no further than yesterday's or Wednesday's the walkout definitely will take place."

All that remained to clear the way for the strike was authorization by the union's international executive board.

The board was scheduled for a special session at 1 p. m. tomorrow to discuss the problem. Union spokesmen said strike approval was a "certainty."

They said the board "always" approves a strike if it is requested by a board member.

Appeals to Murray

The parties met at 3 p. m. after UAW negotiators held a 30-minute caucus to map startegy in the face of an offer from Henry Ford 2d to grant the union immunity from penalty provisions of the Taft-Hartley law in exchange for a "good faith" pledge of union responsibility.

The youthful Ford president went over the heads of the auto worker negotiators yesterday to appeal directly to CIO President Philip Murray to halt the threatened walkout. At that time Ford said his company "cannot agree" to give the union a contract clause which would sidestep provisions of the new labor law.

Union leaders bitterly replied that Ford had "misrepresented" their cause for strike action to Murray and accused the company of a "double-crossing" attempt to back out of the pension plan it promised in earlier negotiations.

60,000 Are Idled

Detroit, Aug. 1 (INS).—The strike by 7000 Murray Corp. workers and other labor disputes idled almost 60,000 automobile workers today.

Murray strikers, out for nine days, shut off supplies to the Ford Motor Co. and other automobile manufacturers, idling 26,500 at Ford.

Kaiser-Frazer sent 9000 home this afternoon after a wildcat strike in the trim department; a strike by 39 closed the Hudson assembly line, idling 9000; and 7500 remained idle at the U. S. Rubber Co. where heavy tire builders are protesting work schedules.

Studebaker announced it will layoff 10,000 Tuesday at South Bend, Ind., for an indefinite period and the Chrysler Corpp. scheduled layoffs for 1300 in its Dodge truck division. Murray makes parts for both.

The Murray strikers seek a contract clause providing protection from lawsuits for unauthorized strikes, possible under the Taft-Hartley labor bill. Negotiations resume Monday.

Hughes Plans Record Flight

shal. Informed of this action, Hughes announced that he "refused to jump through a hoop" for the Senate committee.

Plans Made For Wednesday

"I made a firm agreement with Senator Ferguson's committee that I would appear Wednesday, August 6," he said.

"I expect to have my facts and figures and dates researched and available at that time. I have made my plans to go across the country at that time."

Since that time he has not been available for service of the subpena.

But, The Washington Post's informant said, his firm stand was not to give time for research, but to complete arrangements for the flight by which he hopes to ride into Washington—and the committee investigating room—on the crest of a wave.

Also cited by Wilson were percentage increases in the prices of materials as follows: Steel 17, pig iron 29, coal 22, tin 22, lead 43, cotton 23 and wool 12.

The single favorable item in the costs of raw materials, Wilson asserted, was a 30 per cent reduction from the wartime price of rubber.

The spokesman said the United States Government was being consulted on the matter of British troop withdrawals from Greece and Italy. Other informants said the implications of Britain's policy probably would be debated by the Joint Anglo-American Staff Board in Washington.

Publication of Britain's heavily adverse balance of trade figures for the second quarter of this year showed exports had risen 15,500,000 pounds (62 million dollars) over the previous quarter but the statistics showed a deficit of 191 million pounds (764 million dollars) because the value of imports was the highest for any three-month period since 1920. Suit Filed to Test Taft-Hartley Law

Foremen's Union Begins Court Action As New NLRB Members Take Office

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The general counsel and two new members of the National Labor Relations Board yesterday promised their best efforts at administering a law which, at that moment, was being challenged in court as unconstitutional.

As the new officials took their oath of office and appealed to labor and management to work together, the Foreman's Association of America filed a complaint against the NLRB in District Court, and asked for a judgment declaring that the new Taft-Hartley Act is unconstitutional.

In general and with reference to specific sections, the Association charged that the law was "unreasonable, capricious, indefinite and uncertain in controlling words," and interferred with the constitutional rights of free speech, freedom of assembly, political activity and freedom to quit work.

Pledge "Deep Determination"

It is the first suit to be filed in a Federal Court. The issues, it appears, are not such as to be settled short of a Supreme Court ruling.

The new officers of the NLRB hold their jobs on recess appointments. They had been nominated before the end of the congressional session, but the Senate failed to act on their confirmation. They are Robert Denham, the general counsel, and Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray, the two new members.

With the other three members of the board, they joined in a statement pledging to undertake their tasks with "deep determination." They promised to administer the new law "with all the diligence and fair-mindedness in our power."

The statement added:

"We accept the trust of our new positions with intent to do our utmost to make every provision of the law work as effectively as possible. As members of the executive branch of the Government we repeat our single-minded purpose to carry out the congressional intent as provided in the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947.

"To the employers and employes of the Nation our message is simply this: At this time, as at all others, labor and management will serve their mutual welfare best by working together with full recognition by each of the legitimate rights of the other. And, equally important, they must at all times be sensitive to the needs and rights of the public.

"Beyond this, in the words of the Chief Executive:

"'Insofar as management and labor are concerned, there is a vital responsibility upon them to comply with the law in a spirit of tolerance and fair play. Neither management nor labor will achieve any long-range benefit by seeking to use the provisions of this act to gain unfair advantage or to sustain arbitrary attitudes. It is in the interest of both to maintain steady production at fair wages while the effect of the new act is being tested by experience.'"

Filed in Name of Keys

The suit asking that the Taft-Hartley Act be set aside was filed in the name of Robert H. Keys of Detroit, president of the foreman's union. He was the leader of the recent seven-week foremen's strike against the Ford Motor Co., a walkout which ended in the utter defeat of the union.

The suit asked that the NLRB be ordered to stop dismissing complaints by the Foreman's Association and reinstate its proceedings until midnight August 20, the effective date of the new law.

Further, it asked that such proceedings be continued after that date, because the law itself was unconstitutional.

(Under its provisions, foremen's unions, while not outlawed, are denied legal status or access to the procedures of the NLRB. In other words, they are without the rights and Federal assistance which the Board affords to other unions. Editor's note.)

Whole Act Attacked

Keys asked that a judgment be entered declaring that the sections which deny foremen's unions legal status are unconstitutional.

For good measure, he asked for another judgment declaring the whole act unconstitutional.

Congress, the complaint argued, does not have power to regulate commerce by such indefinite and uncertain language as that used in the statute.

Furthermore, it continued, the injunction procedure is unlawful in that it prevents men from quitting work. Several sections, it was alleged—particularly those relating to political contributions, check-offs, contributions to union welfare funds, restrictions on union shops and prohibitions of the closed shop and the prohibition of Communist union officers—interfere with the rights of free association, voluntary assemblage, freedom of speech and political action.

"I saw the crash coming," said Mrs. Hall, "and threw my arms around Shelly. When we hit, it threw me forward and my head hit the seat."

Lamb Crop Lowest Since '25; 8 Million Head Below Normal

Another blow at America's meat supply was registered yesterday when the Department of Agriculture reported the lamb crop this year will be the smallest in 22 years.

The total for the year was estimated at 22,369,000 head, or eight million below the average for 1936-45 of 30 million head.

This year's crop will be only slightly above the 22,195,000 of 1925, and the 21,763,000 of 1924. It is the third lowest since 1867, wheen records were first started by the Government.

At the same time the Agriculture Department indicated an increase in fats and oils over last year.

Output of lard, tallow and creamery butter was up 16 to 33 per cent, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported.

Flaxseed, cotton and soybean acreages also are larger than a year ago, indicating a much better soap supply.

Imports of fats and oils also are greater than a year ago due to larger shipments of copra from the Philippines and tung oil from other Asiatic points.

Indonesians Planning Last Ditch Battle

Batavia, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Indonesian supreme command declared the Republican capital of Jogjakarta and surronding districts a military area today and ordered it prepared for a last ditch stand in the event of a Dutch attack, radio Jogjakarta announced.

The broadcast said Lieut. Gen. Oerip Soemoahardjo had been ordered to direct defense preparations.

The Indonesian action reflected fears expressed earlier in some Republican quarters that the loss of Republican-held Tjilatjap on Java's south coast—toward which the Dutch mechanized columns were reported rolling steadily tonight—would presage a drive on the capital. The Indonesians said two Dutch fighter planes attacked the Jogjakarta airfield today.

An Indonesian communique said the Dutch had been repulsed at a point less than 10 miles from the south Java coast in the area of Banjoemas, which lies east and north of Tjilatjap, the last Republican port of importance in Java.

Only 20 Miles Away

Latest Dutch reports said the Netherlands forces were within 20 miles of Tjilatjap, which is 75 miles west of Jogjakarta.

The Dutch said they had occupied Poerwaredja, 14 miles east of Poprwokerto, and 60 miles southwest of Jogjakarta.

In the North Sumatra area around Medan, the Dutch announced, a "considerable portion" of the European estate region, one of the richest sources of rubber and other raw materials in the whole archipelago, was now in Dutch hands.

"Although some plantations have been burned down," a supplementary communique said, "the greater part have not suffered more than the damage already caused by years of neglect during the Japanese occupation."

The Dutch said much damage had been reported from Indonesian scorched earthy policy in Sumatra and Java.

Appeals for Peace

Batavia, Java, Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Monseigneur Soegipranoto, the Apostolic Vicar of Semarang, addressed a radio appeal to all Catholics in Indonesia and Holland tonight to exert their influence to end the Indonesian war.

Hungary Takes Virtual Control Of Oil Field

Budapest, Aug. 1 (AP).—Paul Ruedemann, American director of the American-Hungarian Oil Company (Maort), said today the Hungarian government had issued a decree giving Hungary "almost complete control" of the company and setting a minimum production figure which would "ruin the field in a year and a half."

The director said the decree was issued by the Supreme Economic Council, headed by Zoltan Vas, Moscow-educated Communist. He said it set the minimum production for the field in southwestern Hungary at 540,000 tons a years and set the price of crude oil at 120 florints ($10.20) a ton. The present price, which officials say still is not enough to prevent an operation loss, is 170 florints ($14.45).

Ruedemann said U. S. Minister Selden Chapin had been informed of this newest development in the 2-year-old controversy between the Hungarian government and the company, which is a subsidiary of Standard Oil (New Jersey).

The decree also requires that the company deposit 50 florints $4.25) per ton in a "special blocked account" pending new price discussions.

Maort was in constant conflict with the Russians during their operation of the field because of Russian disagreement with American theories of conservation and controlled production. Maort has accused the Russians of causing 25 million dollars damage to the field.

Roxas Says Country Won't Ask U. S. Aid

Manila, Philippines, Aug 1 (U.P.). President Manuel Roxas told 10 visiting American editors today that the Philippines has no intention of asking the United States for additional financial help, but needs credits "which we intend to negotiate on a strictly commercial basis."

Vandenberg Names Senate Air Group

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) was named yesterday as one of five Senate members of a new joint Congressional Aviation Policy Committee.

Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg also appointed Senators Albert W. Hawkes (R., N. J.), Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.), Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) and Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.).

Uninformed Recruits May Have Discharges

The War Department said yesterday that any recruits who enlisted since Monday without knowing that they would get no benefits under the GI Bill of Rights may have immediate discharges if they want them.

On that day President Truman signed a bill fixing termination dates for many wartime acts. One provisions is that men who join the armed services from then on will not be eligible for loans and other benefits of the GI Bill of Rights upon their discharge.

Army officials said the President acted before the War Department could get word to all its recruiting officers in the field, but now they have all been told and new recruits are being advised of it when they enlist.

Wedemeyer in Peiping As Reds Threaten

Peiping, Aug. 1 (AP).—Lieut Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer and his fact-finding mission arrived in Peiping today for a tour of North China and Manchuria as Chinese press reports told of new Communist military concentrations menacing the approaches to Changchun and Mukden.

Mark Watson, the party's press officer, said that after a three-day stay in Peiping, visits would be made to Tientsin, Tsingtao and Mukden.

Thunder Overhead

No one can reasonably deny the right of the Air Force to blow its horn a bit on the occasion of its fortieth anniversary. Yesterday's festival happily coincided with the new career of the Air Force as an independent and equal arm of our defense. Certainly the magnificent accomplishments of military aviation in the service of the country deserve to be commemorated. But while joining in the enthusiasm, we question the wisdom of the displays that deafened Washington periodically yesterday and presumably were repeated in greater or lesser degree all over the country.

The first reason for objection is practical and was indicated by a news item the same day that the Air Force blossomed forth with its show. Because of the critical shortage of high octane gasoline, the Air Force has only 90 days supply on hand. Ever since January it has experienced difficulty in procuring fuel, and recently operations have had to be curtailed. In view of this situation, the lavish consumption of millions of gallons just to celebrate Air Force Day was just plain waste, and the bad judgment involved is not mitigated by the euphemistic explanation that the flights were "routine."

The second objection is that such mass flights tend to exaggerate our present air strength. The initial reaction to these exhibitions of might is to relax in the comfortable feeling that we are secure. That, unfortunately, is not the case. Our available fighting aircraft are at a deplorably low state, and the aircraft production rate is such as to give cause for real concern. Instead of building up illusions as to our air potency, we ought to be doing everything possible to see that the Air Force is maintained at a level consistent with the kind of protection we expect.

Togliatti On The Spot

The drama in the Italian ratification of the peace treaty was supplied when Count Sforza, Italy's Foreign Minister, produced a telegram from Mr. Molotov saying that "the treaty is very just, and there is no reason why you should not ratify or why you should ever ask revision." All he did was to embarrass Italy's Communists. Palmiro Togliatti, their Communist leader, was thrown into consternation, for the confusion in which the Communists found themselves as Italian as well as Communist was already manifest; and the Russian message only made it more confounded. Molotov and Togliatti, both expert players of both ends against the middle, seem to have got their signals crossed.

One of these days, however, this was bound to happen. Soviet policy and Communist policy are dictated in terms of power and not principle. If they involve inconsistency, reliance in the case of the Soviet is put on the arm of the police, and in the case of the Communist, on the blind faith of the followers. But the exhibition in the Italian Parliament may cause some head shaking among Togliatti's following. During the actual negotiations Togliatti was able to play the parts of both nationalist and foreign agent with incomparable skill. In Rome he joined the Italian people in protesting the intentions of the peacemakers; at the same time he split off the Communists in Venezia Giulia and allowed them to set up what to all appearances was an autonomous Communist Party. This party, with headquarters at Trieste, and called the Giulian Communist Party, proceeded to become Tito's chief exponent for possession of Trieste. While this was going on, Togliatti remained in Rome, blandly disclaiming responsibility for the pro-Tito noise coming from Trieste from his former followers. The deception has now caught up with him. In the light of the Molotov message, he could not oppose the treaty, and, in view of his dependence upon home opinion, he could not vote for it. Accordingly the Communists stayed neutral.

The treaty, as we have said before, is far from honorable, and, in our opinion, should have remained unratified. The Trieste solution might have been workable with the addition of Pola to the Free State, but hardly otherwise. Anyway, Tito is determined to reduce the port of Trieste to desuetude, judging from his feverish effort to build up a rival port at Fiume. Moreover, the treaty appears to transgress in more than one particular the armistice stipulations. Arguments for signing the treaty were two: first, that Italy would be hurt by having its international life based any longer on the armistice provisions, and, secondly, that Italy would be enabled to join the United Nations. As to this latter, her entry is opposed by Russia, solely because she has not yet ratified the treaty she said was so "very just" that the Italians should accord ratification. So much outright cynicism has accompanied the peacemaking that the mind reels even over the task of following its convolutions and the spirit is inclined to falter over the prospects.

Razor-Edged Greece

It is expected that the Russian veto on the United Nations watch-and-ward of the Greek frontier will be followed by intensified pressure on Greece. In anticipation Demistocles Sophoulis, Greece's liberal leader, from Athens is backing the efforts of Constantin Tsaldaris, Greece's Foreign Minister, in Washington to get American military aid. It is satisfactory to learn that arms at least are being rushed there. Greece, in addition to getting shipments from this country, is to be given priority in shipments of American surplus from Germany. This is a recognition that Greece has become our problem as much as Greece's.

The surest way of courting a real conflagration is to pursue a policy of limited liability against a force that grows bold only when signs of weakness in the opposition appear. Every day puts an added strain on Greek resistance to the frontier aggression. For the army is just over 100,000, and most of them are reservists, whose period of enlistment has long ago expired. Greek finances also are so low that it is impossible to increase the force without American assistance. Arms and munitions out of our surplus should be marked down to next to nothing for the equipment of fresh soldiers. What must be eradicated in the Kremlin's mind is that there is either bluff or timorousness in the measures we have decided upon in Greece.

Under the law our military aid in terms of personnel is limited to advisory service only. It is a pity that Congress made this rule. A more active role is called for under Article 51, the article allowing for unilateral action against aggressors. The "Flying Tiger" idea deserves resurrection in present circumstances. But, beyond that, help and guidance to the Greeks in defending their independence are dictated not only by Greek weakness but also by the fright and unwisdom lately exhibited by the Greek government. Here is a border situation that requires in the handling prudence as well as action, and prudence doesn't seem evident in the conduct of the Greek government. It is a comfort in these circumstances to know from the cryptic statement by Mr. Griswold in Athens that our relations with the Greek departments will be more than "advisory." No longer can we afford to give aid and resign responsibility for the ways of using it.

Perhaps Mr. Griswold's comment was induced by the appearance of near-panic shown by the recent wave of arrests in Athens. Mr. Sophoulis, who is a former Prime Minister, calls them "hysterical." They were undertaken by General Zervas, Minister of Public Security. We have already insisted that these arrests are not, as Secretary Marshall and Mr. Griswold say, internal affairs. They are very much our concern. If we intend to keep Greece independent, we must keep the Greek government respectable, or we might one day find no Greek willing to be governed by what he will call "our" government. All that is done by these tactics is to make new guerillas for the army to put down. Restraint of General Zervas and insistence on quick trials should go hand-in-hand with aid in defending Greece.

That General Zervas arrested many non-Communists in his recent sweep of Athens is the testimony of other observers besides Mr. Sophoulis. On all sides the evidence is that only a percentage of the arrested were Communist. In the present situation there is every reason to close up the Communist Party headquarters in Athens on the grounds of safety of the state. Venizelos took similar action in 1932. But that is a different matter from this of arresting and deporting Greeks who happen to be critical of the conservative coalition's policies. The right of opposition is as sacred as the need for the utmost firmness, and one way of demonstrating this fact would be for Mr. Griswold to set up a newspaper in Athens which would be both a forum for the people and a platform for our aims in Greece.

Mr. Griswold's task is going to be as difficult as any we know in these days of extreme crisis. He is right out in front in a razor-edged situation where our success will be measured by the risks we take and the responsibility with which they are taken. We cannot hold back and allow the Greeks to shoulder both the risks and the responsibility.

Competition in Terror

Violence is breeding violence in Palestine in a way that bodes ill for any kind of a compromise that the U. N. Palestine Commission recommends. One had hoped that a truce would bring a temporary quiet in Palestine while the deliberations were in progress. The hope was vain. Under way is a naked contest between the British and the underground as to which side can produce the more terror.

Condemnation of the parties involved in the new series of outrages comes easy to those who dwell in ivory towers. In an atmosphere of provocation and hate and hot blood the armor of man's civilization wears pretty thin. But, just as there cannot be two opinions on the inequity of the acts perpetrated by the underground, so there cannot be two opinions on blind reprisal for them. The act of the British soldiers in shooting up a busload of innocent passengers was an act committed in a state of rage raised to insanity by the underground's garrotting of two British sergeants. Presumably the British authorities will take prompt measures to punish the men who exacted such a barbaric revenge. But the killings put a question mark over the fitness of the garrison to do their job any longer as custodians of law and order. The guilty men were simply compounding the anarchy in Palestine.

The parallel between Palestine after this war and Ireland after the last is becoming uncanny. Repression in Ireland created a terrorist movement which went from opposition to the British to opposition to partition. It developed so alarmingly that the British government simply had to turn to conciliation, as they will have to do in Palestine, if only to allay the growing discontent on the part of the British people, who are impatient over police commitments out of their straitened circumstances. Unfortunately, as Emerson said of British colonial rule nearly 100 years ago, "Whenever an abatement of their power is felt, they have not conciliated the affection on which to rely." This proved to be the case in Ireland. It may, alas, happen in Palestine, for extremism has fed on itself for too long a time to take kindly either to the British or to partition.

Brewster Vs. Hughes

The great Brewster-Hughes melodrama, like a Hollywood extravaganza, started out with a chorus, but has failed, so far at any rate, to yield a plot. Senator Brewster's thirst for headlines has made fascinating reading for the midsummer doldrums, but so far if it has revealed any earth-shaking facts we are unaware of them. Indeed, aside from the cheesecake photographs, the principal result of the plane probe to date is to illustrate that in Mr. Hughes Senator Brewster has a different customer from the usual run of witnesses expected to quail before an investigating committee. As Senator Ferguson has remarked somewhat wryly, Mr. Hughes "does not appear to be intimidated."

From what we can gather, the War Investigating Committee's ire has been aroused not so much by the results of the plane contracts awarded Mr. Hughes and his partner, Henry J. Kaiser, as in the high-pressure methods used to obtain them. Now that Mr. Hughes' peripatetic publicity man, Mr. John Meyer, is back home, perhaps the committee will be able to gain insight on how he and his bevy of chorines were able to charm away the opposition of War Production officials. In this, it seems to us, the committee can perform a useful service. Mr. Meyer's entertainment hardly qualifies as a legitimate war expenditure, and if the cost of his lavish parties was charged up to the Government directly or indirectly, the people have a right to know what they paid for.

Nevertheless there is a great danger, it seems to us, in allowing such investigations to become carnivals of hindsight. In retrospect it is easy to point out wartime errors and extravagance. It is also easy to forget that during the war we were desperate. Inertia did not win the war. It took imagination plus a willingness to gamble, both on the battlefield and on the production line. The gamble paid off magnificently. Mr. Hughes was associated with these production gambles. One of his projects, an Army photo reconnaissance plane promises success. The other, a gigantic wooden cargo plane, is dubious. But the fact that Mr. Hughes sank some seven million dollars of his own money in the venture hardly indicates a sinister effort to defraud the Government. At worst the cargo plane was a bad decision. The peril in the kind of smear that has been unleashed is that it may make industrialists extremely chary of cooperation with the Government in any future emergency. And that would be a disaster.

Blackballing The U. N.

It is academic, we suppose, to rail further against Russian abuse of the veto power in the United Nations. The Soviet announces its intent to block the membership applications of Eire, Portugal and Trans-Jordan for the unique reason that they do not have diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union. This is of a piece with the move to delay consideration of Italy, Hungary and Romania on the ground that peace treaties with them have not been ratified. Since Russia is the only major power that has not ratified the treaties, the stall is transparent. All this is merely additional evidence of Russian contempt for the true purposes of the U. N. The Kremlin is determined to use it as a tool of frustration by wielding the blackball.

But while complaints may be of little avail, it is important for the record to register a protest over this flagrant perversion of the United Nations Charter. Article 4 of the Charter provides that membership is open to "all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgment of the organization, are willing and able to carry out these obligations." Manifestly the Russian opposition to Eire, Portugal and Trans-Jordan has nothing to do with whether they are peace-loving. Indeed, the fact that Eire and Portugal remained neutral during the war (Trans-Jordan was still a British mandate) should be proof of their affinity for peace. The real reason for the Russian veto, of course, is that as predominantly Catholic nations, Eire and Portugal are regarded as anti-Communist, while Trans-Jordan is suspect of still being under British influence. Patently the stalling over Italy, Hungary and Romania is intended to keep these countries off the international forum till the native Communists have got them firmly under control.

BALANCE

Poise of the fir tip
Between wind and wind,
Be thou the balance
In my seeking mind.
Hawk's agile wing spread
Searching out the air,
Be thou the steady thought,
The grace to care,
The love of God
That in my spirit's sky,
At ease, may fly.

Dutch In Indonesia

It cannot now be said that the Indonesians are engaged in a righteous struggle for independence, because that independence has already been granted in a signed and sealed agreement. The disagreement is when and how complete independence shall be reached.

It is well to remember that the Indonesians, after the Japanese collapse, kept Dutch people in the concentration camps where the Japs had put them. At the same time this new government took over all factories and plantations owned by Dutch or foreign interests. Few people realize that the Dutch established commercial settlements in Java and other islands as early as 1596.

In addition to the horrors of the concentration camps, a great many Dutch people as well as numerous Chinese and Malayan Christians were slain in their homes by unruly detachments of the Indonesian army. The Dutch, therefore, seeing proof of the inefficiency of their government, insisted that a two-year transition period to complete independence be established. During this period, government would be shared with the Dutch, so as to gradually train the small native intelligentsia. Also, in view of the very poor control of its army by the Indonesian government, military police forces should be shared between Dutch and Indonesians.

Outside of some vague promises as to the return of some of their investments to Dutch and other owners, the Indonesian government kept the negotiations dragging and insisted on complete and immediate independence. Finally, after two years of negotiations, the Dutch realized that only by military action could a solution be obtained which would set up a workable government and end the economic deadlock which was about to become fatal to the native population. Recent ousting of the moderate Premier Sjarir, and assumption of full control by the Javanese Hitler, Soekarno, precipitated action by the Dutch.

To call this a colonial war of expansion, as Mr. McSoud does in his letter published July 27, is quite unjust. Far from stealing the "fabulous riches of the Indies" from the poor natives, the Dutch have brought forth these riches by their technical and scientific "know-how," and thereby benefited the natives as well as themselves.

"Normal" People

Dr. H. E. McGregor, in his letter of July 23, quotes Prof. S. H. Kraines, the distinguished psychiatrist and lecturer of London, as saying "The world today is insane." I quite agree with the professor.

Can any of us be called normal human beings? Modern civilization is neurotic and afraid, and none of us is a well-rounded and nicely balanced personality with a normal mind.

Dr. Nathan Cantor, professor of psychiatry at the University of Buffalo, decided to find out just what a normal mind is. Right at the start he found that many of us "go about our daily affairs more or less afraid of the boss, of our mother-in-law, the loss of our jobs, Communists or landlords."

Some people are afraid of the impression they make on others. There are others who exaggerate their achievements and underestimate those of the next man. Some people are very timid and others very aggressive. Some people are defeatist, convinced before they begin a job that they will not be able to hold it for more than a month.

Some men and women are overconfident, and cannot stand any form of criticism but love nothing better than to give advice to others on how to run their businesses and their lives. Just how many peculiarities can a person have and still be considered a normal human being? It seems that whether a man has a normal mind or not is shown by whether he is happy and able to adjust himself to reality.

It seems that being normal means having a balance between self-expression and self-repression. It means having a sense of internal freedom and a feeling of inner confidence and lack of fear. It means being friendly and tolerant, being willing to live and let live, being able to accept life's circumstances.

Who, of us, then, is normal? The answer is—none. No one in our society has attained an ideally well-rounded, nicely balanced personality.

Roosevelt Publicity

Isn't it about time the newspapers of this country dropped the subject of the Roosevelts? It can't be any concern of ours, or of any particular benefit to government or society now, whether the first wife of Elliott Roosevelt married wisely or not, or how many times she did so. And it cannot help Mr. Roosevelt any now to have the public reading learned research statements from the officials in St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago about the reasons for his death. We took all this when they were in the White House. Everything the Roosevelts said and did was rammed down our throats.

We are suffering now and shall continue to suffer from the Roosevelt policies, for although the personal leader, deified as he was, has gone, his works do follow him, as works have a habit of doing. Is it too much to ask that the public be allowed to live in the present now and follow in the path God has laid out? EUNICE BURKS.

Negro Athletes

The success of Jackie Robinson at Brooklyn and the signing of many colored baseball and football players has given the racial bigots some concern. They fear managers are going overboard for gate receipts and sending deserving white boys back to the minors.

Isn't professional baseball a money-making institution for the owners and stockholders? As to the availability of good colored players, why should they be less competent than their brothers in track and field and boxing? At the Nebraska AAU games, colored athletes won first in all events except the mile and one or two weight events. In both amateur and professional boxing they hold approximately half of the championships. For many years before the bigots got to work, colored baseball players were outstanding on many college and pro teams. We recall Earl Brown, who pitched Harvard to many victories, and Matthews, one of the sterling shortstops on the Harvard team of two decades ago.

Some see in the acceptance of colored athletes a trend toward the kind of democracy we are spending millions to establish in Greece, Turkey and the rest of the world. Jackie Robinson, Willard Brown, Henry Thompson, Larry Doby and others are symbols of a new day. Let us here in Washington and Baltimore open the door.

Army Soft Talk

In The Washington Post of July 28 is a news item headed "Talk More Softly To Rookies, Army Tells Sergeants."

On August 28, 1938, The Washington Post published an article which I wrote entitled "The Army Goes 'Dale Carnegie.'" It is truly factual and was really written around a 15-day training period at Col. Harvey L. Miller's Fifth Marine Corps Reserve Battalion, which later distinguished itself with the First Marine Division on Guadalcanal.

The Washington Post apparently is nine years ahead with its "philosophy effective" of "how to get along in this world with the other guy." GEORGE M. COLEMAN.

Polish Cooperation In Reconstruction

I have read with the greatest interest the article "French Security" by Mr. Sumner Welles in your issue of July 29. The fear of the revival of German industry is not the nightmare of the French people only. This fear of a highly industrialized and powerful Germany is shared by the whole Polish nation, which lost six million of its citizens, killed, starved or tortured in concentration camps, as a result of the last war and the German occupation.

In connection with his remarks on the German problem, the eminent author implies, however, that Poland might stop her coal exports to western European countries as the result of disagreements between eastern and western Europe on the realization of General Marshall's Plan. There have been in the American newspapers recently more statements to the same effect. For this very reason may I be permitted to make a few observations on the attitude of Poland?

Poland now exports coal to all northern European countries and to Austria, Italy, France and Great Britain. It is the desire of the Polish government to increase these exports in the interest of European reconstruction. For instance, at the present moment, a trade mission headed by the Polish Minister of Industry, H. Minc, is negotiating in Paris with the French government to achieve this aim.

The Polish government is also keeping within the lines of several declarations that as soon as the Polish food production is restored, we will also export food to the west. May I add that we are already exporting small quantities of agricultural products—poultry and eggs to Great Britain in exchange for other staple foodstuffs, such as herring—in order to obtain more calories in cheaper goods.

Our intentions to collaborate economically with all the western European countries and with the United States have been expressed very clearly in the recent Polish note in which we regretfully declined the invitation to the Paris Reconstruction Conference. The note stated:

"At the same time the Polish government expresses its unchangeable readiness to contribute its share and join in every initiative which would aim at the reconstruction of Europe on principles favoring stable peace . . ."

It should also be remembered that the relatively speedy recovery of Poland during the years 1945-1946 was largely due to the UNRRA relief, of which 72 per cent has been contributed by the United States. It was, therefore, with deep regret that the Polish government received the information that Poland has been excluded from the 350-million-dollar American aid program. This may slow down the rehabilitation of Poland and diminish her contribution to the reconstruction of European economy.

Ambassador of Poland.

Shrugging Off The Bomb

By Malvina Lindsay

Six Safe Years

NEITHER the fatuous citizen who relies on the bomb "secret," nor the infantile one too engrossed in comics and soap operas to give atoms a thought, constitutes this country's chief atomic peril. Rather it is that growing class that shrugs its shoulders and says helplessly, "What's the use?"

Approach of the second anniversary of the atom bomb burst over Hiroshima finds that city engaged in the affirmative action of holding a three-day prayer festival for the ending of war, while the American mood drifts toward what psychologists warn is a passive surrender to the thing feared. Many persons, baffled by the enormity of the atomic energy problem, or impotently frightened by the bomb, are saying: "What can I do? Of course there'll be another war—so what? Anyway we have a few safe years. Let's go to the ball game and forget it."

Because of this attitude, those trying to inform and arouse the public about atomic dangers are trying new tactics. They are no longer preaching doom, rather trying to give the average citizen faith in his ability to "do something."

RECENTLY Dr. A. M. Meerlo, former chief of the psychological branch of the Dutch War Ministry, warned that the atomic war of nerves must be stopped and the world given freedom from atomic fear. Too great a fear ends in one of two reactions, he cautioned. The human mind becomes ready to accept war rather than endure the tensions of peace, or it is roused to explosive, aggressive action, such as casting the first bomb.

Americans today have lost much of their early sense of security in the bomb "secret." Repeated warnings by atomic scientists and military authorities that the years of bomb monopoly are numbered are finally sinking in. (The War Department recently gave six years as the minimum of safety, 15 as the maximum.)

Citizens are also being bombarded with reports of new developments in pushbutton warfare, in rocket bombs, bacteriological and atomic ray weapons. They are disheartened by Russia's blocking of efforts to get international control of atomic energy. They hear constantly that the one world they had hoped for is splitting into two. They are made jittery by Commiphobia, and surrounded by glib, reckless talk of the next war. Hence many of them are beginning to look forward to an atomic war with the same exhilarated fear with which they might watch a cyclone approach.

THOSE SEEKING to stem this tide of atomic defeatism have several lines of action, all based on the principle that it is dangerous to rouse a person's fears about an evil unless he is given something concrete to do in overcoming them. One of these methods is to interest citizens in what peaceful uses of atomic energy might bring to their lives, and to enlist them in supporting the Atomic Energy Commission in such researches and in keeping it out of a military control that might make atomic energy a wholly destructive force.

Another is to rally people to keep up the fight for some effective form of international control of atomic energy. Another, and the most general, is to engage them in a definite program to prevent war. Since the atom bomb has become part of the larger problem of weapons of mass destruction, the most appealing program to citizens concerned about it is a world organization with enough power to prevent aggression by force.

One of the most hopeful countersigns to atomic fatalism is the way Americans are turning to the movement to strengthen the United Nations as the one remaining hope of peace. This movement has so far escaped becoming a political bone of contention as did atomic energy. Strong bipartisan support of it was evidenced in Congress. Among the groups throughout the country working actively for it is one in Iowa City, former isolationist territory, whose answer to the bomb is its nonfatalistic title, "Committee for Survival."

Simple Funeral

Even a communistic atheist should have been touched by the simple dignity of the funeral services held for the President's mother as described in the press. And what a welcome contrast to the three-ring circuses frequently staged when some politician, or even some big-shot racketeer, passes on!

There could be a very constructive suggestion in this for us all. Possibly the greatest contribution that could be made to our country in these troubled and uncertain times would be a return to the simple faith and principles of our forefathers. C. CHANCERY.

My family wants to thank you for the fine service we have had while we are on vacation. We have had fun comparing your newspaper with those received by other vacationers here from their home towns.

Anatomy Of Terror

By Barnet Nover

Deepening Palestine Tragedy

IT WAS A DASTARDLY and horrible crime that the Irgun Zwai Leumi, Jewish terrorist organization in Palestine, perpetrated when it hanged two British soldiers who had been kidnapped and held as hostages.

NOVER

A dastardly and horrible crime was also committed by those British soldiers and police who stormed into Tel Aviv, after the news of the hanging had become known, and by way of reprisal wantonly killed five Jews, wounding 15 others.

Terror begets terror in an endless cycle. That is the tragedy of the Holy Land today, a land where the fires of violence are approaching a crescendo of fury.

BEHIND THAT TRAGEDY is another, a tragedy of broken promises, deferred hopes, continuous frustration and the bankruptcy of statesmanship.

The Irgun Zwai Leumi is made up of a relatively small group of intense fanatics who take the position that the British authorities in Palestine are usurpers against whom they are waging war. They regard any action as justified as long as it is directed against the "enemy."

Recently, there has been a widening cleavage between the Irgun and the Haganah, the Jewish defense force which has the great majority of the Jews of Palestine behind it.

To an increasing extent, and more and more openly, the Haganah has been trying to combat the tactics of the terrorists. Through its efforts, would-be acts of sabotage that might have led to a great loss of life were prevented.

The Haganah was engaged in a search for the two British soldiers and might conceivably have succeeded had there been enough time. Their efforts were cut short by the action of the Palestine authorities in executing three members of the Irgun who had been tried and convicted on the charge of having taken part in the recent Acre jail break.

THE BRITISH have justified these executions on strictly legal grounds. They cite the law and the law's violation. In this instance, however, justice was not tempered with mercy. It was certainly not leavened with intelligence.

The authorities knew full well that when the three men were executed the lives of the two kidnapped British soldiers would at once be placed in jeopardy. They took the position that they would not be intimidated, since if they gave way this time the practice of taking hostages would spread. Yet there was no inexorable timetable that had to be followed.

The trouble is, and the long history of British activities in Ireland proves it to the hilt, that terrorism is the product of such suppressive tactics as the British have employed in Palestine. The stronger the measures the British have taken to maintain order in Palestine, the more disorder has spread.

They have, to be sure, appealed to the moderate and law-abiding element among the Jews, an element making up the overwhelming majority in Palestine, to join with the government in putting down terrorism. They have never given those moderate elements any incentive to cooperate.

By their failure to do so they have played right into the hands of the Irgun and the Stern gang.

FOR YEARS British rule in Palestine has been compounded of weakness, indecision and bad faith. One need not go beyond the statements repeatedly made by the present members of the British Cabinet to make a formidable indictment of British policy in the Holy Land.

Nobody spoke out more strongly against the White Paper of 1939, which was designated to bolt and bar the door to Jewish immigration into Palestine, than such men as Morrison and Dalton, unless it was Winston Churchill.

Yet the policy pursued by the Labor government has so far been precisely the policy which the Chamberlain government initiated.

Instead of boldness there has been pusillanimity; instead of dynamic statesmenship there has been paralysis. Opportunity after opportunity has been missed either to return to the obligations assumed by Great Britain under the mandate or a bold venture into new paths leading to some kind of a constructive solution of the tortured problem.

The result of this abdication of statesmanship has been to plunge Palestine into a horrible state of affairs.

We can only hope that the United Nations commission now investigating the Palestine problem will not delay its findings too long and that these findings will point a way to a solution of that problem which the British authorities have shown neither the willingness nor the capacity to seek.

Atom Bomb Will Not Be Used By Any Nation, Devers Says

Newark, N. J., Aug 1 (AP).—Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the Army Ground Forces, said today that the atom bomb probably will never again be used in war.

Military leaders probably will avoid the bomb "as circumspectly in any future war as gas was in World War II," he told an audience at Newark Airport as part of ceremonies marking the fortieth anniversary of the Army Air Forces.

General Devers said that if the atom bomb were used, an "atomic slugging match" would follow.

"Neither side could so achieve any substantial victory," he said.

Whether the atom bomb is used or not in future warfare, the "final decision could be effected only by surface forces," the Ground Forces commander said.

Envisions Flying Army

He saw "every prospect that we can avoid war" when the United States has a "fly-to-fight" army.

General Devers announced: "In the near future, we will be able to fly a standard infantry division, with all its armament, to battle. Our infantry battalions, with their artillery, are already airtransportable. When present ordnance and Air Forces developments culminate in a heavy, airportable tank, we can fly standard infantry regiments to the attack. When engineer and Air Forces developments produce heavy engineer equipment which is airportable, we can fly a standard infantry division to war."

"When we have an army which can fly to fight, and an air force that can fly it, there is every prospect that we can avoid war, and make the peace permanent," Devers said. "The guarantee of sure, swift retribution will certainly deter any would-be agressor."

3 Dangers Described

The general said it was "improbable" that any future agressor would attack until he held weapons equal to his intended victim. Only the United States has yet disclosed possession of a workable atom bomb, although other nations are working on them.

Devers described three "dangers" from "too-vivid predictions of victory through airpower":

A people may come to believe destruction through enemy airpower inescapable and adopt a defeatist attitude, which "is hardly in keeping with our American heritage, but it exists."

A feeling of false security behind the atom bomb may develop.

Or airpower may be developed to the neglect of land and sea power.

Devers expressed regret that "radical demobilization has so diminished it (the Air Forces) in size that it is now the world's most powerful force only in terms of technical superiority and know-how."

"Autonomy for the Air Forces will not mean much if we stint on research and development on planes, and on trained men to fly and maintain them," he added.

Retiring Army Employe Receives Merit Award

Fred R. Franzoni, 67, of 1712 Taylor st. nw., was awarded the Meritorious Civilian Service Award yesterday in recognition of 50 years service with the Army Medical Department, the surgeon general's office announced.

Presentation of the award was made by Brig. Gen. George E. Armstrong, deputy surgeon general. Franzoni is retiring after service under 11 surgeon generals. During the Spanish-American War he was a civilian volunteer escort on a hospital train carrying evacuees suffering from typhoid fever, diphtheria and malaria.

Senators And Airlines

THE BREWSTER investigation of Howard Hughes' wartime airplane construction contract has accomplished at least one good end already. It has brought out into the open the political pulling and hauling to get overseas air routes and the Government subsidies that go with those routes.

Childs

So far, this has been merely incidental to the effort to find out whether political influence was used to jam through the Hughes contract over the protests of experts in the field. The latter is a sideshow. The big show, if any Senator or group of Senators had the courage to look into it, is the politics behind the assignment of the overseas air routes.

The trouble is that so many Senators seem to be linked with the fortunes of individual airlines. There have been constant reports of the pressure used for this or that line.

It has a little the sound of the old days when the railroads were battling for position and power, when Senators were bought up by the resourceful men promoting the roads. It was a crude process that rarely came to public attention.

UP TO 1940, the only airline to operate overseas was Pan American Airways. Under the direction of Juan Trippe, president of the line and one of the most extraordinary personalities in a field in which daring and imagination are conspicuous qualities, Pan American pioneered routes to South America and later to Europe and Asia.

In 1940, a rival line obtained a certificate from the Civil Aeronautics Board to fly to Europe. Established after the war as American Overseas Airlines, it became one of a half-dozen to operate in competition with Pan American.

Trans-World Airline, in which Hughes has a dominating interest, got exclusive privileges to fly to Paris, Rome, Cairo and other world capitals. Pan American got exclusive rights to Berlin.

Trippe and other Pan American executives were bitterly resentful. There have been repeated intimations of political pull, especially in the case of Hughes, whose name is invariably linked with that of Elliott Roosevelt.

The other lines have retaliated with charges against Pan American. The strategy of Pan Am. has been to push in Congress bills providing a "chosen instrument" or United States monopoly line for overseas in which, theoretically, all lines would have a share. A newly issued aviation business letter, discussing the fight over the "chosen instrument," links Senator Owen Brewster to the fight for Pan Am.'s goal.

THE LETTER suggests a political tie-up between Brewster and Pan Am. Vice President Samuel F. Pryor, jr., who is also Republican national committeeman from Connecticut. Pryor is said to have agreed to go all out for Brewster for the GOP vice presidential nomination.

Certainly Brewster has done all he could to further the "chosen instrument." But, then, so has a leading Senate Democrat, Pat McCarran of Nevada, who has never missed an opportunity to aid Pan American.

Other Senators are linked to other airlines. The name of Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem., Wash.) is frequently mentioned in connection with Northwest Airlines. Alaskans, who hoped to see an inland air route established, with lower fares than those on the route through Seattle, blame him for checkmating their plans. Magnuson denies this charge. He says that he owns a small block of Northwest Airlines stock and that his former law firm in Washington State does some local business for the company. But his interest, he insists, is only that of any Senator in a local enterprise.

The taxpayer foots the bill for the subsidies to the airlines. How much has actually gone out to the lines is snarled in a complicated confusion of postoffice and airline bookkeeping. Certainly it is hundreds of millions, and it may be billions. How much has been returned to the Government for carrying the mail, is also a matter of figures, and the interpretation of those figures is beyond the comprehension of the ordinary citizen.

A Senate commitee should find out. That is the heart of this controversy—how much you and I are paying to keep the airlines going. That is so much more important than the sideshow, in spite of the spectacular billing of lobbyists' parties with bathing beauties for each guest.

Seizure of Atomic Materials Held in U. N. a Signal of War

Lake Success, Aug. 1 (AP).—The seizure by any nation of atomic stockpiles and facilities always will be a signal of war, United Nations atomic energy delegates declared today in a preview of their second report.

"The seizure (by any nation or group of nations) of stockpiles, production facilities and facilities utilizing nuclear fuel will always be a danger of such magnitude," the delegates said, "that seizure should be recognized by all nations to mean that a most serious violation of the treaty has taken place and that the nation is about to embark on atomic warfare."

The views of the delegates, acting thus far in their individual capacities, were contained in a series of six papers made public by the political committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission.

Soviet Russia took no part in drawing up these papers and frequently criticized the work on them by the delegates. Poland participated slightly.

U. N. observers said that unless Russia and Poland changed their attitude, the atomic commission would turn in its second report in September by a 10-to-0 vote, with Russia and Poland abstaining. That was the lineup on the first report made to the U. N. Security Council last December 31.

The papers made these important points:

Nations or persons should not own atomic source material, nuclear fuel and dangerous facilities;

National research and development activities should be limited only so far as is necessary for security;

An atomic treaty should embody the principle that comparable national deposits of atomic-bearing ores throughout the world should be used up proportionately so that one nation would not gain an advantage;

The agency's powers of inspection, by plane and other means, should be wide but should have some limits.

Officials See Close Race on Aid to Europe

By The Associated Press

American officials now fear the economic crisis in Europe will develop so rapidly that the need for new American help may outrun the Marshall Plan's ability to supply it.

The financial difficulties of Britain are only a part, although the major part, of the conditions which are causing serious concern in Washington.

Reports have been reaching officials for some time that the French and Italians, whose political futures are more directly involved because of their domestic Communist Parties, may need additional help before the year-end.

One bright spot is that not all help need be of an outright financial nature. For instance, some relief is afforded foreign nations wherever ships are transferred for their direct operation and their dollar drain to meet shipping costs in American vessels is eased.

In the main, however, the Administration faces the next few months before Congress reconvenes without resources for meeting most of the expected critical needs of Europe.

Officials feel that at least they must give Europeans cooperating in the Marshall Plan every possible indication of American interest, goodwill and support until the United States does swing into action.

For this reason diplomatic authorities believe the qualified indorsement Senator Taft (R., Ohio) gave to the plan in his Columbus, Ohio, speech last night may be a source of encouragement to Europeans.

Because of Taft's position of leadership in the Senate, the indication that he will work with Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) in support of what he considers a "reasonable" program of foreign assistance may be welcomed abroad.

Called Least Costly

Reading, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP).—A resolution terming the Marshall Plan "the least costly way of 'saving' Europe which is available to us" was adopted today by the national executive committee of the Socialist Party at the opening session of a three-day meeting. Socialist from throughout the country are attending.

Truman Signs Bill for New Navy Weapons

President Truman yesterday signed legislation authorizing the Navy to go ahead with a $55,580,000 program to equip 15 warships with the latest weapons and devices.

The program is to be completed in four years. Expenditures planned for this year total $5,030,000. This sum has already been appropriated by Congress.

The program calls for equipment of nine destroyers with the latest weapons for antisubmarine defense, conversion of four submarines for cargo and troop carrying, and of two landing ships dock for polar operations.

Presidential approval also was given to:

A bill authorizing Agriculture Secretary Anderson to maintain minimum standards of quality and maturity and inspection requirements for farm products.

Under the legislation, all commodities from farms other than milk and dairy products carried in interstate commerce are affected.

A bill authorizing the Federal Works Administrator to continue making contributions during the 1948-49 fiscal year to local school agencies still struggling with heavy wartime enrollments.

Crop Insurance Limited

Legislation reducing the Federal crop insurance program to an experimental basis, limiting wheat coverage to 200 counties, cotton to 56, and flax, corn and tobacco to 50 each.

Legislation authorizing the War and Navy Departments to provide a "distinctive gold star lapel button" for widows, parents and next-of-kin of service personnel who died in World War II.

Legislation fixing the peanut marketing quota for each farm at "the actual production of the farm-acreage allotment."

This means a farmer can market without penalty only peanuts raised on the acreage allotted to him under the Agriculture Department's peanut program.

Mortgages as Collateral

A measure authorizing Federal Home Loan Banks to accept mortgages with less than 25 years' maturity as collateral for advances to member institutions.

Legislation permitting the duty-free importation until July 1, 1948, of newsprint paper in widths of not less than 9 inches. Chairman Brown (R., Ohio) of the House Newsprint Committee, who sponsored the legislation, said it was necessary to cope with the present paper shortage.

Dewey Home, Confident Trip Won Delegates

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey returned today, brimming with confidence that his 7000-mile unofficial campaign tour of the West had given him a substantial edge in the race for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

Tanned from his month-long jaunt through Mid-western and Rocky Mountain States, the Governor stepped briskly from the train, posed smilingly for photographers, and turned aside all political queries.

He went immediately to the capitol to hear a clemency appeal and study other urgent matters. Tonight he was scheduled to go to his Pawling, N. Y., farm for a rest.

Although Dewey made no comment, his friends said he was confident his "nonpolitical" tour had solidified his position among national convention delegates from at least 15 States.

Dewey forces are claiming that he will go to the Philadelphia convention next June with 420 first-ballot votes, just 127 short of nomination. They feel that the race already has settled down to a finish fight between Dewey and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Dewey was said to feel that he has no chance of nomination on the first ballot because of "favorite son" candidates. His political high command expects the favorite son delegations to swing to Dewey on the second or third ballot.

The Governor's strategy has been to line up "stampede-proof" delegates who will stick with him to the end. This would prevent a repetition of the 1940 convention fight when a hopeless deadlock between Taft and Dewey brought about the nomination of Wendell Willkie.

Majority Would Follow Thrift Precepts With Gift of $1000

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 1.—The thought, "If I only had a thousand dollars," has entered many a day-dream of rich and poor alike.

If someone made you a gift of $1000 tomorrow, what would you do with it?

Would you tuck it away for a rainy day, go on a trip, have a good time?

The institute posed this issue to a representative cross-section of American voters. The answers give a picture of a prudent people who follow Benjamin Franklin's precepts of thrift and economy.

About three out of 10—31 per cent—would take the windfall to the bank, buy bonds, or in some other way save the thousand dollars. Twenty-four per cent would use it toward buying or improving a home, a step which Poor Richard would wholly approve.

By far the largest proportion of the answers were on the thrifty side, when you include such responses as "invest it in a business of my own" and "save it for education." As a matter of fact, only 3 per cent of the answers show a desire to use a $1000 gift merely on a "good time."

In answer to the question: "If someone made you a gift of $1000 tomorrow, what would you do with it; the following responses were received:

Save it, put in the bank, invest it	31%
Buy homes, pay on mortgage, repair house	24
Buy car, furniture, home appliances, clothes	14
Pay bills	8
Travel	6
Go into business, add it to my business	6
Buy presents, give to charities	5
Spend it, have a good time	3
Save it for education, use it for education	3
Use it for every day expenses	2
Miscellaneous	3
Don't know	4
	107%*

*Percentages add up to more than 100 because some respondents gave more than one answer.

College grduates are more inclined to put the money in a bank right away than those with high school or grammar school education. On the other hand, the response "put it into my home" is met more frequently in the latter groups. In other words, if banking of money and buying a home are combined under the heading "saving," very little difference is shown between educational breakdowns.

The strongest demand for automobiles and appliances would seem to be among people between 21 to 30 years old, one out of five of whom say they would use the gift for that purpose.

Professional and business people emphasize the savings angle more than farmers and manual workers. However, more farmers than any other occupational group say they would turn the gift back into their business. Manual workers lean toward using the extra money that comes their way for housing.

Truman Conveys Thanks to Press In Mother's Death

President Truman yesterday expressed appreciation to newspaper reporters, photographers and radio correspondents for what he termed their kindness to him during the illness and funeral of his mother.

The President told the press group he had invited them in for the express purpose of conveying his appreciation for their courtesy on his trips to Grandview, Mo., where Mrs. Martha E. Truman, 94, died after a long illness resulting from a hip fracture.

The President's desire for privacy both during his mother's illness and after her death was respected by the men assigned to cover the President.

The President told them he spoke from the heart in expressing his thanks, particularly to the photographers, who respected his desire that no pictures be taken.

Chile Cabinet Attempt Fails

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla was faced today with a serious political situation following failure to organize a cabinet of national concentration.

Liberal Party leaders rejected the president's invitation to join such a cabinet and announced they would join the Conservatives and other opposition parties, thus leaving the government with a minority in Congress.

This development came as the country faced a serious economic situation which Senor Gonzales had asked all parties to help remedy.

The president announced that he would now proceed to organize a technical administrative cabinet, with capable and efficient men who are not politically active.

There was intense political activity at the Moneda presidential palace throughout the day.

All cabinet ministers were expected to resign momentarily.

Government spokesmen blamed failure of the national government idea on insistence by the Liberals that Gustavo Ross, former finance minister and presidential candidate, be appointed both finance and economics minister.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, in revealing this yesterday, added that total loans increased $2,867,000 over the previous week this year.

Real estate loans climbed $1,882,000 for the week to a total of $150,726,000, a gain of $52,922,000 over a year ago.

Commercial, industrial and agricultural loans showed a decline of $526,000 for the week, but remained $95,655,000 over the aggregate of $327,000,000 last year.

The 18 Washington member banks showed $186,306,000 in loans and discounts as of July 23, 1947. Real estate loans accounted for $56,563,000 of the local aggregate, while commercial and industrial loans totaled $82,097,000.

Store Sales Edge Higher

Washington department store sales in the week ended July 26 edged two per cent higher than in the same 1946 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For the four weeks ended July 26, local dollar volume was unchanged from the like 1946 period.

Regionally, retail sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District were off one per cent for the week and down three per cent for the four-week period.

Banks Extend PCA Loan

C. Bedell Monro, president of Capital Airlines (Pennsylvania-Central Airlines Corp.) announced yesterday that the airline had been extended a four-million-dollar loan until November 1, 1947. The loan became due August 1.

Capital Airlines originally made the bank loan on August 1, 1946, and it first became due on May 1, 1947. At that time it was extended for three months.

Dividend Payments Up 15%

The Commerce Department said that publicly reported cash dividends paid by corporations totaled $159,200,000 in May, or 15 per cent more than in May, 1946.

For the three months ended May 31, it added, these payments totaled $1,040,600,000, an increase of 17 per cent over the same period of last year.

Personnel Notes

American Airlines announced yesterday the appointment of A. Di Pasquale as director of labor relations and American Overseas Airlines announced that James A. Jackson had been elected a member of AOA's board of directors.

G. R. Herberger, 42, St. Cloud, Minn., has been elected president of Butler Bros., Chicago wholesale merchandisers. Herberger will succeed T. B. Freeman, president since 1939, effective today. Freeman will become chairman of the board.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Cotton futures drifted lower today with final losses of 1.65 to 2.30 a bale. Commission house and New Orleans selling was inspired by trop news and the failure of the market to respond to a better export demand.

In addition to a fresh French inquiry for some 50,000 bales and estimates that buying by that country may reach more than 100,000 bales by the end of the year, it was reported that Germany was seeking 25,000 bales under the new private cotton program.

One On the Aisle—

Study in Nostalgia

'I Wonder, Etc.' Has Old Songs!

By Richard L. Coe

IF YOU'RE FOND of such old songs as "Goodbye, My Lady Love," "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie," "Honeymoon" and "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," you'll find some pleasure in the Palace's new musical.

If you're fed to the teeth with the unending struggle of Genius to rise to the top of the ladder, however, there's not much to attract you to "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," which is, by the way, the season's longest film title.

If you're fond of reasonably authentic backstage scenes and the drafty dressing room corridors that reek of grease paint, you'll get some enjoyment from this George Jessel production, for the veteran entertainer has certainly been unusually careful along these generally ignored lines.

If you're often baffled how script writers manage to earn their mountains of coin by pouring out heapings of cliches and wornout romantic tangles, you'll remain as baffled as ever.

"I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" is a Technicolor musical suggested by the life of Joseph E. Howard, that amiable song and dance man who's still topping variety and night club bills around the country. As a youngster, Producer Jessel must have admired Howard immensely, for the film obviously has been made with genuine affection. The musical numbers are pleasant and the dances carefully staged by Hermes Pan.

The story, alas, is all too familiar, one of those things which makes you thank heaven you're not a songwriter, for members of which craft life evidently holds no surprises. The boys with melody in their hearts apparently just keep banging away and sooner or later everyone is whistling their tunes.

The Same Old Story

It's not the fault of the picture that all this has been done before, but it is the fault of the scriptwriters that they don't manage to make it seem fresh and crisp. Probably at this stage it would taken geniuses to give such a yarn real zing, but that's what geniuses are paid for.

Joe evidently began his professional life in a store specializing in church organs and equipment. He'd show prospective customers how pretty wheeze-boxes could sound. But Joe also wanted to write songs for All America to Sing. He gets sidetracked by the wrong women, while all the time The Right One was at his side. You don't have to be told what happens before the picture's over.

As Howard, Mark Stevens has a job that recalls Larry Parks' assignment in "The Jolson Story," but unfortunately no one has taken the trouble to show him how to fake playing a piano.

A Voice Double?

June Haver is the little "sister," who finally convinces Joe Smith that she's a good entertainer. June's acting ability is, let us say, limited, but she's cute enough to carry her songs. Lenore Aubert, as a Viennese songbird, speaks in one register and sings in another. Martha Stewart is the lady who gets them away from selling pump organs. Reginald Gardiner does what he can for laughs.

Considering that Howard's life has been far more eventful (he's lost a couple of fortunes and at 80 has been married eight times!), the story might have been less patly contrived than it is. But nostalgia was what Producer Jessel was after and that's what he's got, nostalgia corn pudding.

"I WONDER WHO'S KISSING HER NOW." 20th Century-Fox release produced by George Jessel. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Screen play by Lewis R. Foster, additional dialogue by Marion Parks. Dances by Hermes Pan. Music and lyrics by Joseph E. Howard, Will M. Hough and Frank R. Adams, with additional material by George Jessel and Charles Henderson. Technicolor Director Natalie Kalmus.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Cowboy Senator Plans Coast-to-Coast Ride

By Drew Pearson

Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho, a former cowboy vaudeville crooner, who has come to win the respect of his Senatorial colleagues, will take an unusual trip this summer.

Taylor

While some Senators will be junketing to Alaska or touring Europe, Taylor will ride from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast.

The Senator from Idaho candidly admits that it is a publicity stunt, but not for Taylor, for peace. Along the way, Taylor plans to speak for the United Nations and world cooperation. He has just helped introduce a bill to strenghten the United Nations and help eliminate the veto power by which one nation can hold up the peace efforts of the rest of the world. Taylor feels that the Middle West is becoming isolationist, is worried over the threat of war, and wants to dramatize the problem of peace.

The Idaho Senator has planned to buy two horses in California and begin his trek east from the Golden Gate Bridge, San Francisco. One horse will follow behind on a trailer, while he rides the other, alternating each day. Taylor says he plans to ride horseback every inch of the way, even including western deserts and the Rocky Mountains. He figures the trip will take him three months.

Airplane Junket Vetoed

While Senator Brewster's battle between Pan American Airways and Howard Hughes' Trans World Airline held the headlines on Capitol Hill, some interesting wire-pulling was attempted down on Pennsylvania Avenue. It illustrates how determined Pan American Airways is to put across its policy of "one company" to operate overseas air routes.

What happened was that 12 Congressmen were planning to fly overseas, largely at the instance of Pan American Airways, to "study" the one-company idea. However, for once in the history of Government, the Civil Aeronautics Board put its foot down, ruled that the Congressmen would have to pay their own way. This came as a rude shock, and the junket is now off.

The request for a free ride came from GOP Congressman Charles Wolverton of New Jersey, able chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. Under CAB rules, the airlines cannot carry passengers free without special permission of the CAB, so Wolverton wrote asking for that permission.

However, former Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma, acting chairman of Civil Aeronautics, after consulting with other board members, said no.

Incidentally, one of the Congressmen who wanted to go along to "study air routes" was Evan Howell, Illinois Republican. Even though Howell has just been appointed a judge of the United States Court of Claims, and would not be back in Congress to vote on the "one-company" plan for overseas airlines, he was included in the proposed free ride.

The committee, incidentally, had held up its vote on the one-company idea until members could take this overseas trip inspired by Pan American Airways. And when the CAB turned thumbs down, Pan American was so eager to put the junket across that Pan Am officials suggested a trip on airplane credit cards, by which the Congressmen would travel on credit until Congress could appropriate the money next January.

However, this struck a snag when Alfred Bulwinkle (D., N. C.), and William J. Miller R., Conn.), flatly refused to make the trip unless Congress appropriated the money or they paid for it personally.

Note—The Pan Am officials who did the dickering were smart Sam Pryor, Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, and Bill McAvoy, Pan American publicity genius, Pan American, with a long-time monopoly in Latin America, has wanted Howard Hughes' Trans World Airline to cooperate in the "one company" idea for overseas routes. Hughes claims that his refusal to go along is the reason he is being probed.

KKK Rides Again

Despite the Georgia court order officially dissolving the charter of the Ku Klux Klan, here are the minutes of a recent meeting of the Nathan Bedford Forrest KKK Klavern No. 1, held at 198½ Whitehall st., Atlanta:

Approximately 90 klansmen attended. The klokan committee approved 31 new applications for membership. Copies of the Georgia Tribune were distributed to all entering the klavern, and Grand Dragon Dr. Samuel Green talked about the fine work of the editor, Parson Jack Johnston, who was active in the klan in 1928 and will be the exalted cyclops of the new klavern to be set up in Columbus, Ga.

Grand Dragon Green spoke at length about the articles in the Georgia Tribune in which Parson Jack accused city, county and State officials of fraud in their prosecution of the pro-Nazi Columbians.

Plans also discussed for a public demonstration and cross-burning on Missionary Ridge at Rossville, Ga. It was explained that klansmen dressed in robes would be on each highway leading into the town to show all klansmen to the initiation spot. Three cars leaving Atlanta were to be driven by Jimmie Helms of the Atlanta police, Klansman Pulliam and Dr. Green.

Dr. Green urged all klansmen who have cars to take as many klansmen as possible who have robes. It was apparent from the plans to direct traffic that the grand dragon had the full and complete cooperation of the city police. It was also announced that on August 2 a watermelon cutting would be held in Grant Park with all klansmen invited to come. Dr. Eubanks, a dentist in the Candler Building, closed the meeting with a 5-minute talk on klancraft.

Note—The Baptist minister, Parson Jack Johnston, editor of the Georgia Tribune, is not a member of the Southern Baptist Convention, has frequently attacked the Rev. Louis Newton, president of the convention.

Gen. Bradley Cuts Hospital Plans of VA

Gen. Omar N. Bradley yesterday ordered all nonessential features cut from veterans' hospitals being planned under the $772,702,845 Veterans' Administration hospital construction program.

At the same time Bradley promised "We shall not trim costs at the expense of patient care."

The Veterans' Administrator said "runaway construction costs" have outdistanced funds available.

Among the plans to be trimmed are those for the much-harassed 15-million-dollar, 750-bed veterans' hospital, originally slated for the Nevius tract in Arlington. That site has since been ruled out by the House Appropriations Committee.

Recent contractors' bids "have run 15 to 35 per cent over the most generous Government estimates," General Bradley informed his assistant and deputy administrators, in announcing that 36 other proposed hospitals also will be affected.

"Either we must modify the desirable but nonessential features of a substantial number of structures on the drawing boards," he declared, "or we may require as much as 100 million dollars in additional funds."

General Bradley said he found evidence that contractors were adding a 15 to 30 per cent "fear contingency cushion" to their active construction bids.

Tubercular Ex-GI Sues VA for Failure to Tell

New York, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—A former GI, who served eight months with the Army in the United States, filed a $200,000 suit against the Veterans Administration today because it failed to inform him that he had tuberculosis.

Isidor Terman, 36, Manhattan, charged that since the VA did not tell him of the disease, he took no preventive measures and his 4-year-old son contracted the disease from him. The former Army man said that the VA did not reveal the results of a chest X-ray.

Hyattsville Firm Awarded Sewer Work

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission yesterday awarded a contract for construction of the first link of Montgomery County's proposed Potomac River interceptor trunk sewer.

The award was won by the Inter-County Construction Co. of Hyattsville, which submitted a bid of $71,697 for the 1900-foot project between the District line, near the C. & O. Canal, to Brookmont, Md.

When completed, the project will be the first step in a $500,000 construction program designed to eliminate the stream pollution problem in the Cabin John area, officials said.

In the Hyattsville offices of the commission yesterday the Inter-County Construction Co. was also awarded a contract for construction of 2 miles of water and sewer lines in Brookside Forest and Highland View at a cost of $24,991. The project will serve 45 proposed homes in the area.

A bid of $10,505 from the Williams & Wilson Construction Co. of Brookeville, Md., won a sewer construction job for 25 proposed homes in the Nimitz and Newport Mills rd. areas in Kensington.

Republicans Name 5 to Run In Fairfax County Election

Nomination of five Republicans to run for Fairfax County offices in the November general election was announced yesterday by County Party Chairman Fred A. Bryan.

Bryan said candidates will be nominated for other offices before the August 5 deadline. He said that according to law the nominees must be named before the Democratic primary.

Those already named include three for the County Board of Supervisors, Paul E. Rhinehart, jr., Dranesville; Joseph F. Clem, Falls Church; Lem B. Morris, Providence; Noah L. Dove for sheriff, and A. K. Barta for the House of Delegates.

Bryan said that because of "deplorable schools, intolerable roads, and poor health facilities, the time is ripe for the two-party system to invade Fairfax."

Following the services, Chaplain Miller will be celebrant at a Holy Communion service honoring the chaplains who died in service. He will be assisted in the Communion service by Post Chaplain Capt. Gregory Locke.

The office of chaplain was formally recognized by the Continental Congress on July 29, 1775, and as the Army developed the Chaplain Corps became a separate branch. By World War II the corps had grown to more than 8000 members of every faith and denomination. Chaplains went with the Army and Navy on every front, where they served gallantly and were decorated for their heroic action. More than 100 lost their lives in service of the Nation.

Budenz Slated For 4 Talks on Catholic Hour

Louis F. Budenz, former member of the Communist Central Committee, will speak on NBC's Sunday Catholic Hour program during August.

A principal figure in current reports of Communist espionage in the United States, Budenz recently renounced his Communist Party membership and became a member of the faculty of Fordham University.

The general subject of his four Catholic Hour talks will be "The Church and Labor."

Budenz joined the Communist Party in 1935 and later became labor editor, president and managing editor of the Daily Worker. He was a member of the national committee of the Communist Party for six years.

He decided to return to the Catholic Church in 1943 and in 1945, after removal of excommunication, was received into the church.

The Catholic Hour is heard on WRC at 6 p. m. (EDT) each Sunday.

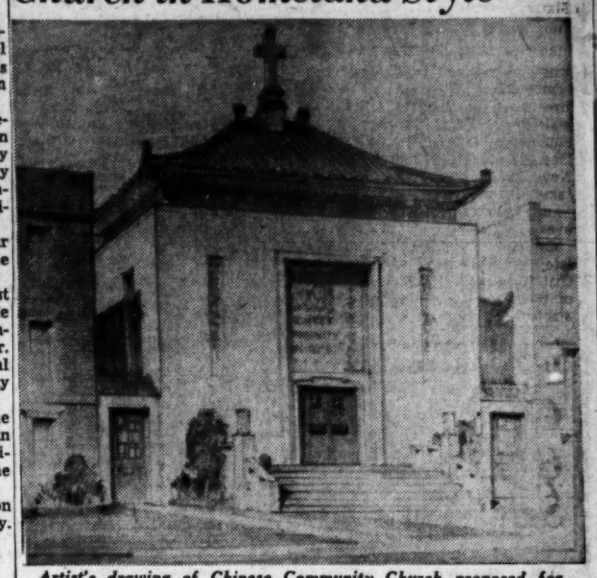
District's Chinese to Build Church in Homeland Style



Artist's drawing of Chinese Community Church proposed for erection on site at 1011 L st. nw.

Members of Washington's Chinese Community Church, 1011 L st. nw., are bent on replacing the red brick building where they have held services for the past seven years. They hope soon to see an impressive but simple structure in the style of an ancient Peiping temple. The new church will be a monument to the devotion of Washington's tiny Chinese colony.

Hung

Behind these plans for a new church, and the $40,000 raised toward the $130,000 building, lies the hard work and enthusiasm of Pastor C. C. Hung.

In May of this year, led by Dr. Hung, the group began the drive which has brought the fund to almost a third of the goal. At that time Mrs. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, presented Hung with a check for the first $34,000 all of it contributed by the local Chinese community of about 1500.

When the drive was started, Dr. Hung said, churches of every denomination were asked to join in. So far none has refused, and contributions large and small continue to flow into the building fund.

The pastor's eyes light up when he tells of the activities of his church group in raising money for the new building.

One of the most active groups in the church is the Leiming (Dawn) Club, composed of teen-agers. This spring the group held a Lenten fair, complete with white elephants, games, movies and refreshments. In one evening while members of the church enjoyed themselves, the group cleared $300 for the building fund.

Young adults of the Chinese Community Church, who belong to the Liencing Club, are not to be outdone by high-schoolers. Throughout the spring and summer they have sponsored lectures and social activities, especially popular with young Chinese-American veterans. In the fall, in connection with the twelfth anniversary celebration of the church, they will hold a program for the fund.

Dr. Hung is proud, too, of the Chinese Women's Fellowship group recently formed as the first women's club in the church. While their children play on the church grounds, they meet each month in the parlors. Sometime in the fall they plan a bazaar as a money-raising device.

This active congregation of 230, which weekly uses every available inch in the church, has grown from the "handful" which greeted Dr. Hung when he came here from Detroit in 1935.

Perhaps one reason for the church's phenomenal growth is Dr. Hung's firm belief that the building should be more than a church. As he pointed out, it should serve also as an educational, cultural and community center for the city's Chinese. To bring this about, classes in Chinese language and culture for American-born Chinese children are held in the winter after public school hours. Recreation rooms in the building, rooms for a Boy Scout troop, and a kitchen for church suppers show that Dr. Hung is doing more than a little to prevent youth problems.

All these activities are planned in the new structure. In addition to a large sanctuary, with a capacity of 270, there is a spacious social hall. Cheery classrooms will replace the tiny quarters now used for Sunday school and the winter language sessions. These two rooms have been especially reserved for the use of the Boy and Girl Scout Troops during the evenings.

Behind the nave on the main floor are rooms for young people's meetings and a library. On the second floor there are quarters for the minister and his family, and another large room for group meetings.

The present Chinese Community Church was the outgrowth of Sunday school classes held for the city's Chinese from 1889 on. When Dr. Hung and his wife came here 12 years ago, they found no church building, and the smallest of congregations.

For nearly five years the group held services in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church before they were able to have a meeting place of their own.

At a cost of $20,000 they remodeled an old rooming house on L street, and expanded their activities. Although many of Washington's Chinese were then helping relatives in their stricken homeland, they were able to pay off all debt on the house and land by 1940.

The Chinese Community Church is sponsored by a group of city civic and church leaders of all denominations. The board of managers and the fund campaign committee both are interdenominational.

Dr. Hung is intensely proud of the fact that his church is interdenominational. As he says: "The Nation's Capital ought to have something bigger than the rest of the country. We all have the same goal, though we may work for it differently. Closer friendship and fellowship between races and creeds is one way we can do away with prejudices and antagonism. That is the only way we can have lasting peace and happiness."

Commuting Organist to Leave

Lowell M. Broomall, organist at Sixth Presbyterian Church, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw., will conclude a long period of commuting when he plays for the last time tomorrow at the 11 a. m. service. Broomhall, a Western Union official, has been organist at the church for a year and a half. Last December he was transferred to New York, and since then has taken the train to Washington for Sunday services and special church events.

Dr. Earl Franklin Fowler, minister of the church, has announced that Broomhall will have charge of tomorrow's service. Instead of a traditional sermon, Broomall will play two compositions of Johann Sebastian Bach and explain them to the church congregation. At the service, Holy Communion will be celebrated, and members of the church will express their thanks to Broomall for his work with them.

Well known in local musical circles, Broomall has been vice president of the Organists Guild and accompanist for the Baltimore and Ohio Choral Society. He has appeared in Town Hall, New York, with the Bethlehem Choir.

After a short vacation, he will begin work at the Presbyterian Church in Bloomfield, N. J., where he will be organist and direct three choirs.

Children Of Germany Send Toys

With everyone in Washington bemoaning the heat, thoughts of Christmas and Christmas gifts may seem out of place these days. But the Washington Federation of Churches, 1751 N st. nw. has on display a group of gifts that are in the best Christmas tradition—gifts from the children of Germany to the children of the United States.

It all started over a year ago when groups throughout the country contributed money to buy milk for the children of our wartime enemy. In Darmstadt, Germany, the children wanted to say thank you with something more than a letter, something in the way of a return gift.

Boxes Gaily Decorated

They made toys after school hours to send to the children who had helped them through the hard winter. Shortly after Christmas last year the gifts arrived at American Friends Service Committee headquarters in Philadelphia, carefully packaged in the same boxes in which the milk had arrived in Germany.

On top of each box there were pine boughs and gay red ribbon. Inside there were tiny hand-made rag dolls, gay wooden clowns which danced on a string, and hand-drawn cards and pictures. The children of Darmstadt had used every small scrap of cloth and wood they could find, and bits of pasteboard and string to express their sincere thanks for the help of their little friends in America.

Gifts on Tour

So many people had contributed funds for the milk that officials at the Friends Service Committee knew that it would be impossible to give each of them one of the gifts. So it was that they decided to send the gifts on a tour to all of the schools and churches which had contributed, so that all of the children could know of the "thank you" gift.

The gifts will be in Washington until August 15, and may be seen in the main lobby at the Washington Federation of Churches Building, on N st., from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. On weekends they will be on display at local churches and Sunday schools.

Rev. Pruden Cites Duties To Baptists

Copenhagen, Aug. 1 (AP).—Less than one tenth of the world's population can be said to possess full religious liberty, the Rev. E. H. Pruden of the First Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., told an English-speaking sectional meeting of the Baptist World Alliance's seventh Congress today.

He declared that English-speaking Baptists had a great obligation to help in maintaining both political and religious freedom because of the history of their church.

The task could not be completed, he said, if Baptists put all their faith in "conferences among nations and in treaties . . . until civil humanity has found the Saviour, there will be no real freedom."

The congress earlier heard a plea by Dr. Henry Lin, president of Shanghai University, that East Asia be given a Marshall Plan such as the one for western Europe.

The first relief report of the world alliance, allotting $100,000 for Baptist relief work, largely in Germany and Austria, was submitted to the congress today.

500 Watch as Roman Singers Get Key to City of Washington

The District yesterday extended its official welcome and a silver key to the city to the Roman Singers of Sacred Music from Vatican City.

More than 500 persons looked on while the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Licinio Refice, director of the choral group, received the Commissioners' official greeting in ceremonies in the front of the District Building at 2:30 p. m.

Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, presented the key and extended the "city's hospitality" on behalf of the Commissioners.

White-haired Monsignor Refice, clad in purple, bowed graciously, touched the key to his lips and raised it aloft in a salute of appreciation.

Antonio Dazzi, labor and immigration attache of the Italian Embassy, gave a greeting in Italian on behalf of Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani. Sam Scogna of the Lido Civic Club of Washington officiated.

After posing for news photographers, Monsignor Refice led the 28 adult members of the 54-member choir in two selections, "Ave Maria," his own composition, and "O Jaintais," by Perosi. The younger choir members, 8 to 15 years old, were left in New York to rest.

They will come to Washington Sunday, however, when the full choir will give an 8 p. m. concert at Griffith Stadium, sponsored by the Lido Civic Club of Washington.

Tickets may be obtained at the stadium or at the Fairway, 1328 G st. nw.

1 Civilian Killed, 33 Wounded In Palestine Reprisal Fights

Jerusalem, Aug. 1 (AP).—Britons and Jews clashed in angry reprisal and counterreprisal today in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem and unofficial sources tonight numbered the day's casualties at 1 dead and 33 wounded—all Jews.

In the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, shaken all day by bloody encounters, the streets were virtually deserted tonight as Jews scurried home, fearful of new outbreaks such as occurred last night, when five Jews were killed and a score wounded.

An unofficial report said several rounds of shots were fired at the Jerusalem security zone gate near the Jewish Agency offices late tonight, setting off general alarm sirens throughout the Holy City for the second time in 24 hours.

Later reports said there also was shooting in the German colony, where live most British officials who are restricted to specified security zones.

Today's incidents in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem raised the casualty list for the last half of July in Palestine to 24 killed and 144 wounded. Fifteen of the dead were police or army personnel, two were Jewish attackers and seven were civilians. The wounded included 79 security force personnel and 65 Jewish civilians.

The official report of arrests following today's attack in Jerusalem said eight suspects were detained and one attacker arrested.

Representatives of the Jewish community from all parts of Palestine met during the day with members of the Jewish Agency executive to consider additional measures for combatting terrorism in the Holy Land.

The day's bloody events, all reverberating from the execution by the British of three Jewish underground members and the revenge hanging by the underground of two British sergeants, began with a terrorist attack on the Jerusalem headquarters of the Royal Hampshire Regiment.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

YOU NAME IT—anything except a fast ball—and Mickey Haefner will serve it up, garnished with a big side order of guts. The smallest pitcher in the majors has just won his third in a row, one of them a shutout, by throwing up everything to the plate except a set of dishes, as the ballplayers say.

POVICH

Haefner doesn't throw his pitches past the big bad hitters in the sense of breezing the ball by 'em. Long ago he realized that he couldn't throw as hard as the big boys, try as he might with all the sinew of his 5 feet, 7 inches, but he knew he could make his pitches do tricks.

Out of Haefner's fist comes the widest assortment of pitches stocked by any man in the majors, barring that fast ball. The batter always has to guess with Haefner. It may be curve ball, screwball, knuckler or slider. It's always something spinning or fuzzy, to mess up a hitter's timing.

The days when Haefner gets licked are the days when he doesn't have the control to nick the corners he pitches to. Haefner considers himself wild when he gets the ball over the plate too nicely.

THERE IS NO claim that Haefner is the best pitcher in baseball or even close to that rating, but he qualifies for at least one superlative. He's the frankest pitcher who ever came into the big leagues, a fact established one day in the spring of 1943 when he reported to the Nats' Maryland University training camp after his purchase from Minneapolis.

A baseball writer, astonished by the small size of the left hander the Nats had bought for $20,000, casually asked Haefner what was his best pitch. Certainly not a fast ball, he ventured. "Oh, no," said Haefner, "no fast ball, just a little bit of everything. Curves, screwballs, knucklers and sometimes a spitball."

Spitball? Didn't Haefner know it was outlawed more than 20 years ago in all organized baseball. "Yeah, but you could get away with it in the minors," he said. "I guess the big league umpires won't let you get away with it, so I'm not counting on it here. I'll get by all right with my other stuff."

Haefner, now 34, didn't get to the majors until he was 30, and he's sore about that. "Wasted a lot of time in the minors because they thought I was too small," he says.

HE'S STILL SORE at the big league scouts who passed him up. "They don't give a little guy a break," he says. "They won't recommend a pitcher unless he's 6 feet and weighs close to 200. They go in for big hunks of meat who can't pitch, and turn down little fellows who can. I was outpitching a lot of those big guys in the minors and I never got a second look from the scouts until Washington bought me."

Back in Minneapolis in 1941, he won 18 games in the American Association, and worked the amazing total of 241 innings. "I was starting and winning my own games, and then finishing games for big Van Mungo who won 15 with my help. But when the Giants' scouts were sent out for a pitcher, they grabbed Mungo for about $25,000 and left me there in Minneapolis. Mungo flopped again."

Haefner didn't miss when he got his chance with the Nats. He won 11 and lost 5 in his first season, with one of the lowest earned run averages in the pitching lists, 2.29 per game. The next year he won 12, and the following season 18, both starting and relieving. He always starts against the Yankees, the best tribute to a pitcher on any staff in the league.

IT WAS CIRCUMSTANCE that brought Haefner to the Washington club. The Nats happened to be owned by a former star pitcher who wasn't much bigger than Haefner and had no prejudice against little guys. Clark Griffith thinks every little pitcher has courage to start with. "They can't even make good in the minors without guts," he says.

The Washington club first heard of Haefner in 1940 in Florida. That was the year Sid Hudson, out of the class D Florida State League was the sensation. During spring training, Hudson, a 24-game winner in the minors, modestly commented, "I wasn't the best pitcher in this league. Deland had a little fellow named Mickey Haefner who beat me twice, 1 to 0, in the play-offs and won 24 games himself."

The Nats got a look at Haefner three weeks later. He was pitching for Minneapolis, then training at Daytona. He didn't look any bigger than a watch charm, but he held the Nats to two hits going into the ninth when Gerry Walker beat him, 1-0. Griffith marveled, tabbed him for future reference, and bought him three years later.

McCullough Swats 2-Run Homer in 9th

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Catcher Clyde McCullough, long-time nemesis of the Brooklyn Dodgers, ended the Brooks' longest winning streak since 1924 today by belting a two-run homer with two out in the ninth to provide the Chicago Cubs with a 10-8 victory over the National League pace-setters. A crowd of 24,319 fans paid to see the slugfest.

McCullough's clout, which landed atop the ramp in left field, halted the Dodgers' consecutive win streak at 13 games. The victory was only the Cubs' third in 16 meetings with the Dodgers this season. The Dodgers' 1924 high was 15 straight.

Southpaw Joe Hatten, who had defeated the Cubs eight successive times, started for the Dodgers and appeared on his way toward another triumph with a 6-3 lead going into the last of the sixth.

The Cubs knocked Hatten from the mound by scoring twice in the sixth and after the Brooks came back with two runs in the seventh, the Cubs stormed back and tied the score with a three-run uprising in their half of the seventh to set the stage for McCullough's payoff wallop off Hugh Casey, fourth Dodger pitcher, two frames later.

Worsham's 136 One Shot Behind Haas

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 1 (AP).—An iron game that approached perfection rocketed Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, unattached professional, to a 6-under-par 66 and a 36-hole total of 135 in the St. Paul Open Golf Tournament today.

Haas' 66 put him in the lead of a brigade of professionals and amateurs that made something of a mockery of par 72 for the 6432-yard Keller Municipal course.

Lack of rain recently has dried out the fairways and greens, resulting in plenty of roll on the balls.

Ferrier also Has 136

Pushing him for the lead were Lew Worsham, Washington, D. C., and Jim Ferrier of Chicago. The two professionals, who carded 69s in the first round, came in with 67s today for 36-hole totals of 136.

Just one stroke behind them was Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., pro who had a 69 today to go with his 68 of yesterday for 137.

Another 5-under-par 67 was turned in by John Barnum, Chicago amateur. Barnum had a 71 yesterday, giving him 138.

Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., who led the first round of play with a 67, slipped to par figures of 72 today for 139.

Haas got off to a poor start in today's round, going one over par on the first and third holes when his wood shots landed in bunkers. He counted birdies on the fourth, fifth, seventh and eighth holes to make the turn two under regulation figures with a 34.

On the incoming nine, the former national intercollegiate champion and winner in 1945 of the Memphis open, dropped in birdies on the 12th, 13th, 17 and 18th holes to give him a 32, four under par, and his 66.

As a result of the day's scoring, in which 17 players matched par of 72 and 24 others bettered it, a score of 150 or lower was needed to qualify for the final two rounds of 18 holes each on Saturday and Sunday.

Bobby Locke of South Africa, leading money winner on the summer golfing circuit, struggled to get a two-under-par 70 which, added to his 72 of yesterday, gave him 142.

Locke toured the first nine today in regulation figures and did the same on the incoming nine with the exception of the 12th hole where he got an eagle 3. Unless Locke can get his putter working better than it has in the first two 18-hole rounds, it appeared he would finish far down on the prize list.

Early Routs Jinx, Allows Only 7 Hits

Early Wynn pitched his 12th victory of the season last night as the Nats took the opening game of the series with the Chicago White Sox, 8 to 1, at Griffith Stadium.

Wynn held the Sox to seven hits and had a shutout until the eighth inning as he worked behind a comfortable lead built up in the early innings by the Nats' extra-base hitting.

Wynn wiggled out of trouble in the first inning after walking Baker, the first man to face him. Hodgin hit into a force play and after Wright singled, moving Hodgin to second, Wynn fanned York. He walked Appling to fill the bases but retired the side on Philley's fly to Robertson.

The 11,000 fans saw the Nats jump Joe Haynes for a 2-0 lead after two were out in the first inning. Robertson was safe on York's fumble and Vernon scored him with a double to center. Stan Spence scored Vernon with a single to center.

Christman's double to center that opened the second inning was turned to no account by the Nats but they got a quick run off Haynes in the third to boost their lead to 3-0.

Buddy Lewis opened the third inning with a single to center and Robertson scored him all the way from first with a two-bagger into the right field corner at the base of the wall. Further trouble was averted by Haynes when Christman hit into a double play after Priddy was purposely passed.

They got Haynes out of there in a three-run fourth inning launched by Wynn's double to right. Yost walked and Lewis lashed a triple to left scoring both. Robertson greeted Relief Pitcher Bob Gillespie with a deep fly to Philley that brought Lewis in.

In the fifth the Nats made it 7-0 after Priddy walked with one out. Christman singled to center and Priddy scored from third while Michaels was throwing out Evans.

Bob Feller Blasts Baseball Bigwigs on Barnstorming

By Milton Richman

New York, Aug 1 (U.P.).—Bob Feller, Cleveland's ace righthander, levelled a blistering broadside today at "several baseball big-wigs" whom he accused of dictating "how, when and where a professional ball player shall earn his money."

Without mentioning specific names, the Indian fire-baller vigorously rapped the knuckles of officials responsible for the currently enforced post-season exhibition game rule restricting appearances of players after the regular season is ended.

"The way the system is arranged now," Feller said, "players who wish to barnstorm must wait until October 8 so as not to conflict with the World Series, and then are permitted to play only 30 days.

"I haven't any gripes for myself," he added, "but think of some of these other players who only make $5000 or $6000 a year. I have enough money but I know those other fellows haven't.

"This is a democracy, isn't it?" Feller asked. "We fought a war to keep this country democratic and then somebody comes along and tells a ballplayer how, when and where he can earn his money playing ball."

At the close of the 1946 season, Feller led an all-star big league team on a country-wide barnstorming junket, and he plans to do the same thing this year.

"When they rule that we can't play exhibition games until 10 days after the season is over, they cut out the best time of the year for us," Feller declared.

"We lose a chance to play in most of the big cities after that because the football teams take over, and even if they didn't, the weather gets too cold. We drew 150,000 fans during the first 10 days of our junket last year, and then we didn't draw that many for the rest of the trip.

"I've heard some bigwigs say they were afraid several players wouldn't try to win the pennant if the players knew they could make much more money the first 10 days of a barnstorming trip. That's a lot of nonsense," Feller snapped.

Indians Edge Yanks in 9th

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians climaxed an uphill battle in the ninth inning today by scoring on Catcher Jim Hegan's triple and Joe Bockman's fly to break a 3-3 tie and defeat the American League's front-running New York Yankees, 4-3.

Joe Page, crack Yankee relief ace, was the victim of the Tribe's winning rally while Red Embree, second of four Cleveland pitchers, was credited with the win.

The Yanks nicked veteran Mel Harder, who started for Cleveland, for a run in the first inning and drove him to cover in favor of Embree with a two-run attack in the fourth on Tommy Henrich's double, two groundouts, George McQuinn's two-bagger and a single by Billy Johnson.

Cleveland pushed a run home in the second when Mel Harder singled behind Joe Gordon's double and a walk to Al Lopez.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 1. (AP).—A double by Bill Rigney and a balk by Mel Queen, former New York Yankee pitcher, scored the winning run in the sixth inning tonight as the New York Giants edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 before 28,855 fans. Dave Koslo went the route for the Giants, allowing only six hits.

Colts Complete Grid Roster

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 1.—George Zorich, veteran guard from Northwestern, the Chicago Bears, and the Miami Seahawks reported to the camp of the Baltimore professional football club today to complete the list of Colt prospects.

Don Malmberg, All-Coast tackle from UCLA, has been switched to quarterback. Don, a flashy performer at 208 pounds, is almost too small to play tackle in professional ball, so Isbell has transferred his talents to that of field general, a position he played in prep school. This afternoon the transplanted linesman blossomed in his new job.

Malmberg, along with Ernie Case, his Uclan teammate, Jim Darr of Missouri, and Owen Goodnight of Hardin-Simmons handled the passing assignments and all showed to advantage against an alert pass defense.

Naimans Wins, Widens Lead

Naiman's Disc Shop widened its league lead to a game and a half over Heurich's as they defeated Cameo, 8-4, yesterday in a Post Industrial League game at the Ellipse. Johnny Catloth and Bob Dehner led the winners' attack with three hits apiece. Heurich must win their last two games in order to tie Naiman's for the league lead.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 1 (AP). Steady Seymour Greenberg, Los Angeles, a terror on clay courts but who never has won a major tennis tournament on grass, today reached the final round of the Meadow Club's invitation tourney by defeating Sam Match of San Francisco, 6—3, 6—3, 10—8.

Greenberg will meet the winner of tomorrow's other semi-final between fifth-seeded Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador and Victor Seixas, unseeded University of North Carolina netman. The final match will be held Sunday.

Greenberg teamed with Seixas and lost in the quarter-final round of the doubles to Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., and Gardner Larned of Chicago, 6—2,6—4. Bartzen and Larned beat Jack Kramer and Ted Schroeder yesterday in the year's major upset in doubles.

In another quarter-final doubles, Frank Guernsey of Garden City, N. Y., and Francisco Segura of Ecuador eliminated the third-seeded team of Harry E. Likas, jr., San Francisco and William Vogt, Philadelphia, 6—3, 3—6, 8—6.

The 'New' Frankie . . .

Sinkwich, 20 Pounds Lighter, Looks Good to Ray Flaherty

By Lou Black

Cheshire, Conn., Aug. 1 (AP).—The 'new Frank (Fireball) Sinkwich, 40 pounds lighter than he was a year ago, and "anxious to get going," today excited Coach Ray Flaherty and his aides as the New York Yankee footballers opened a month of preseason drills on the Cheshire Academy Field.

Flaherty, one of the game's real conservative gents, predicted, after watching the blond Sinkwich, an All-America back at the University of Georgia in 1941 and 1942, that Frank "can be the best football player in the country this fall, and I'd say he's going to make it."

Fireball Frankie was a disappointment to Flaherty last season when, following a knee operation, he was available for only about 10 minutes of action in the All-American Football Conference.

"I was prepared to go slow on where Sinkwich would fit into our plans this fall," confessed Flaherty, "but that's out as of right now."

The new 200-pound Sinkwich raced through today's double workout like a rookie, and beamed when informed of Flaherty's appraisal. He had been working out for almost a month on the University of Georgia compus and looked it.

Actually, Frank appeared to be well ahead of the rest of the squad of some 55 huskies, and promises to be a toughie when the first scrimmage is held here next week.

While Flaherty, whose Yankees won the Eastern division title in 1946, was in a generous mood, he also found cause for elation in the form displayed by Buddy Young, fleet Negro back from Illinois; Dick Barwegan, Purdue guard; Vic Schleich, Nebraska tackle, and Van Davis, Georgia end, all newcomers.

Flaherty and his staff, Jack White, Red Strader and Jim Barber, said they were concerned with only two positions, center and blocking back, but were confident that they'll be able to juggle the squad so as to come up with the right answers.

"Matter of fact," said Flaherty, "my toughest job will be to cut this squad to the conference player limit."

William and Mary Names Assistant Coach

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—Alfred M. Thomas, football and track coach at Ishpeming(Mich.) High School, has been named assistant coach and instructor in physical education at William and Mary College, Athletic Director R. M. (Rube) McCray announced today.

Thomas was a track and football letter winner at the University of Michigan and graduated in 1942. He served 2½ years in the Coast Guard.

Dodger-Card Tie Will Be Replayed As Benefit Game

Brooklyn, Aug. 1 (AP).—President Branch Rickey of the Dodgers announced today that his team would meet the St. Louis Cardinals the night of August 18 at Ebbets Field in a playoff of their disputed game of July 20, with the entire proceeds going to a fund for the erection of a Brooklyn war memorial.

President Ford Frick of the National League originally ordered the game replayed as part of a double-header on August 18, but he has granted approval of the new arrangement.

The two teams thus will play their regularly scheduled game in the afternoon, after which the park will be cleared and a new audience admitted for the night benefit game.

Frick declared a 3-3 tie and ordered the game replayed after Ron Northey of the Cards had been deprived of an inside-the-park home run by a mistaken action of Umpire Beans Reardon.

Chicagoan Turns 'Killer'

Bratton Kayoes Sparmate, Batters 2 Others in Drill

JOHNNY (HONEYBOY) BRATTON, classy Chicago colored lightweight, continued his murderous punching yesterday at Turner's Arena in another tune-up for his bout with Herbie (Biff) Jones, local scrapper, Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

Bratton knocked out one of his sparmates, giving him such a walloping previous to it that he refused to return today.

Billy Morris, a game little lightweight, was hit so hard his handlers became concerned after reviving him. They said they would have him examined by a Boxing Commission physician.

Charlie Bennett, the next sparmate, went down in the first round and took a fierce shellacking for two more. Walter Roane, third of Bratton's opponents, also was battered at will.

Today, 2 p. m., Bratton will train in public. Jones continues drilling at the Merrick Boys Club. Final workouts are scheduled tomorrow.

HOWARD FRAZIER, Bratton's manager, said that his fighter became incensed over reports from the Jones camp that he was afraid of the "Biffer" and had turned "killer" in training for that reason.

Jack Hurley, Chicago promoter, will be here Monday to try to land a return Bratton-Jones bout for his city, and also plans a lightweight title match in October for Bratton.

Ken Stribling, knockout conqueror of both Frank Sweeney and Joe Gannon, has been matched for the semiwindup against K. O. Williams, middleweight scrapper

World Tennis Stars Play in Orange Event

Orange, N. J., Aug. 1 (AP).—A parade of tennis luminaries that would do justice to some of the biggest prewar international tournaments began converging today for the annual Eastern Grass Court tennis championships at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club.

Here's a partial box score of the entrants:

Sixteen of the first 21 nationally ranked Americans in the men's singles.

Six of the first 10 juniors.

Representatives from seven foreign countries.

Virtually every American woman of any prominance along with the entire British Wightman cup team.

In the men's singles, which will serve as one of the most important prenational and pre-Davis Cup tuneups, only Frank Parker, Tom Brown, and Jack Kramer will be conspicuous by their absence.

Parker, former national champion, injured his shoulder two weeks ago and still is resting. Brown, rated fourth nationally, is in Europe, while Kramer will pass the singles competition, because, he said today, he does not want to overplay before the Davis Cup finals at the end of the month.

However, the Wimbledon champion will team with Ted Schroeder in the doubles.

Behrens, Mouledous In Junior Finals

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 1 (AP).—Herbert (Buddy) Behrens of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Richard Mouldedous of New Orleans, La., matched their 1-2 rating in the National Junior Tennis Tournament today by taking straight set matches from semifinal opponents.

Behrens won a 6—3, 6—2 decision from eighth-seeded George Gentry of La Jolla, Calif., and Mouldedous dropped only one game in disposing of Jerry Dewitts, unseeded entry from Vallejo, Calif., who had eliminated three seeded players.

Behrens and Mouledous meet in the best-of-five set finals tomorrow.

In the boys division it will be an all-California finals with top-seeded Robert Perry of Los Angeles facing Allen Cleveland of Santa Monica.

Perry knocked out Jim Farrell of Kalamazoo, 6—4, 6—2, in one semifinal match today, while Cleveland took Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., 6—3, 6—1, in the other.

Hart, Todd Reach Swiss Semifinals

Lausanne, Switzerland, Aug. 1 (AP).—Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of Hidden Valley, Calif., advanced to the singles semifinals of the Swiss international tennis tournament today but lost their bid to add the doubles title to their Wimbledon championship.

Miss Hart defeated Martha Peterdy of Hungary, 6—8, 6—2, 9—7, in the singles quater-finals while Mrs. Todd eliminated Anne-Marie Seghers of France, 6—0, 6—2.

But in the doubles finals, the Wimbledon titlists were upset by Mrs. Nell Hopmann and Mrs. Nancye Wynn Bolton of Australia, 1—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Brown in Finals Of Prague Event

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 1 (AP).—Tom Brown of San Francisco came from behind today to defeat Torsten Johansson of Sweden, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3, and advance to the singles finals of Czechoslovakia's international tennis tournament.

Brown's opponent for the title will be Jaroslav Drobny, Czech Davis Cup ace, who defeated Lennart Bergelin of Sweden in the other semifinal, 8—6, 6—2, 7—5.

Favorites Click Again For Bettors

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 1.—Jockey Sammy Palumbo turned in one of his better rides and brought Joe Braglio's Patty Knot, a castoff from the Bedwell barn, home a half length in front of the closest opposition in the Otter Point Purse featuring the Friday program here.

The 5-year-old mare and the 37-year-old jockey had to overcome some early trouble but were going away at the finish.

Mrs. K. L. Molyneaux's Louray O'Neill, twice a winner here, was second with Mrs. A. Chamady's Taking Way third in the field of eight, going seven furlongs over a fast track. The winner was clocked in 1:27 3/5. Patty Knot made the favorite players happy to the extent of $4.60 mutuel.

Stretch Drive Wins

Louray O'Neill set the pace most of the way, taking command and saving ground in the early running. In the stretch, however, Palumbo put Patty Knot to a drive and the mare wore down the pacemaker. Taking Ways was a beaten-off third.

Favorites were clicking in most races and the day's steeplechase proved the fourth jumping winner for Jockey F. D. Adams, aboard S. R. Fry's Vader King. Adams simply coasted his mount behind a variety of pacemakers. Kaltain was the last and when Adams asked Vaden King for speed it was there. Vaden King returned $3.40.

The seventh race was taken by J. Marzano's Salmart under good handling by Jockey Stanley Austin of Baltimore. He took Salmart to the front but had to ride out the 6-year-old to last by a head margin.

Short-Priced Double

J. Hirsch's Valdina Dust, with Jimmy Baird aboard, was second. Third money went to Mrs. Anna Moore's Jab Me. Salmart was a public choice and paid $5.20.

Short priced horses also figured in the daily double. Elmer Kratz's Agency won the first race under George Cardoza's handling, while Apprentice Eddie Hopkins won the second with Mrs. V. P. Moxley's Harv Aethel. The daily double paid $12.80.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 1 (U.P.)—Heavily bewhiskered Man Mountain Dean, who reputedly earned a million in wrestling and movie roles, is going to school so he can apply for a job witht he Veterans' Administration as a physical reconditioning instructor.

The wrestler's true name is Frank S. Leavitt. He's 56 and, except for 700-pound Blimp Levy, is probably the heaviest wrestler in the business.

ICC Denies Arnold Line Request for Fare Hikes

Bus Company Must Now Await Program Recommended by Examiner Week Ago

A request of the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., more familiarly known to riders as the Arnold Line, that it be allowed to increase fares on five days' notice was denied yesterday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission overruled the motion which was filed by the bus line at the conclusion of hearings on higher fares several weeks ago.

The ICC decision means the bus line must now await the program recommended a week ago by an ICC examiner.

The ICC examiner recommended that the bus line be allowed to increase 10-cent interstate cash fares to 15 cents, and 20-cent fares in the company's fourth fare zone to 25 cents.

It was also suggested that the company sell tokens two for 25 cents for use in the first or Arlington zone. The bus line also runs into Fairfax County.

Under the examiner's recommendation, interested parties will be allowed until August 14 to file protests against the suggested fare increases. The company will be allowed 10 days after this deadline in which to answer the protests. The case will then be taken under consideration by the ICC.

More Chest Funds Asked For Hospitals

Council Head Cites Disparity in City's Share in Budget

The National Capital Area Hospital Council will seek to increase the 1948 Community Chest Federation allocation to its member hospitals.

That was decided at an executive session of the Council yesterday, which voted to ask Daniel W. Bel, president of the federation, to meet with a committee from the council to discuss the Chest's allocation to the hospitals in its 1948 budget.

Final approval of the Chest's 1948 budget has not yet been given by its board of trustees, an action which determines the campaign goal.

Cies Indigents' Needs

"The hospitals feel that they must have more from the Chest," William R. Castle, council president, said, "to serve the needs of the indigent of this area."

The hospitals seek an allotment of about $7.20 a day per indigent person admitted, he said, instead of the approximately $5 per day they are receiving now.

"The proportion of the Community Chest budget given to the hospitals is much less than in many or most cities. Boston, for example, gets about 21 per cent," he said, "while it is about 12 per cent here."

Almost all of the private hospitals in the group of 21 comprising the council were represented at the meeting in Emergency Hospital.

Earlier in the day, Lee D. Butler, president of the Washington Community Chest, said "the frank and full discussion of the Chest and its agencies is proving of great assistance" in drafting recommendations to be made to the full board of trustees.

"Sincere appreciation" of the time and effort given by the Chest Study Committee, headed by William D. Leahy, was expressed by the Chest's executive committee in a resolution.

Meeting Set August 11

A meeting of the board of trustees is scheduled for August 11. Recommendations based on the Study Committee's reports and election of agencies to Chest membership for 1948 are expected to come up then.

To the Chest's collection of letters inspired by the Study Committee's reports was added that of the Potomac Cooperative Federation, which represents 10 organizations, including Group Health Association and several Greenbelt cooperatives.

The Federation urged that representation on the Chest's Board of Trustees of the professionally trained executives of the social agencies be continued, and that agencies dealing with the prevention of social problems not be dropped from Chest membership.

"It will not be the preventive nor character building agencies that will suffer most if you split the Chest, and it will not save the community a cent," the Federation said in a letter signed by Leroy A. Halbert, president.

MP Who Let Prisoner Escape Kills Himself

St. Louis, Aug. 1 (AP).—Police Lieut. Lester Martin said today a military police sergeant identified as Howard Ford, 40, of South Boston, Va., shot and killed himself today in the men's room at Union Station because of the escape of an army prisoner.

Ford left a note in which he said allowing a prisoner to escape was an "unpardonable thing." Martin said he learned that several days ago Ford fell asleep on a train near Joplin, Mo., and that when he awoke he discovered the AWOL soldier he was taking to Fort Knox, Ky., had fled.

'Insult' Makes Budwesky Quit As Alexandria City Manager

Carl Budwesky, city manager of Alexandria since 1938, resigned yesterday in a stinging letter to the city council.

Mayor William T. Wilkins said the council would meet in closed session today at 11:30 a. m. to name an acting manager until a successor was chosen. He expected no permanent appointment to be made immediately.

Although Budwesky's resignation because of poor health had been rumored for some time, he specified yesterday that he was leaving because of the council's action last Saturday. While Budwesky was away, the council ordered him to submit a complete report on the resignations of the police and fire chiefs or hand in his own resignation.

Amazed at "Crude Insult"

This resolution Budwesky called "unwarranted and insulting." He was "amazed that any group of men could so crudely deal with a city official who has devoted more than 18 years of conscientious effort to the city's service."

Budwesky said he attended the council meeting, Tuesday, to learn what council's grievances were. He thought them "unjustified or trivial." He said he had withheld his resignation only until he could complete a report on the city's progress in acquiring school sites, a subject "on which I have been wrongfully accused and maligned."

His resignation was effective yesterday. His plans include a rest on doctor's orders and then reopening of his Alexandria law office.

A native of Pennsylvania, Budwesky came to Alexandria in 1913. He served as city attorney from 1929 to 1938 and as the city's fifth city manager since then.

Climax in Resignations

Budwesky's resignation climaxed a series of resignations of city officials during the past two weeks. Assistant City Engineer Col. Edward M. Markham, jr., quit on July 20 alleging lack of cooperation from his "immediate superior."

Within three days both Col. John S. Arnold, police chief, and James M. Duncan, jr., fire chief, handed in their resignations because of conflicts with the city council.

Capt. Edgar Sims yesterday assumed charge of the police force. Budwesky left before filling the vacancy in the fire department.

In resigning yesterday, Budwesky failed to realize his project to bring a greater control over public utilities. The council refused to take action on buying the Alexandria Water Co. or on joining with Arlington in an investigation of the Rosslyn Gas Co.'s rates.

An extensive personnel survey, sponsored by Budwesky, which would classify all city employes and set up a standard pay schedule is now before council for approval.

Nine years in office, Budwesky served longer than his four predecessors combined. The city adopted the city manager form of government in 1932.

Independent and candid, Budwesky has been a controversial figure in Alexandria since he assumed office. He expressed his views even when he knew they were opposed to those held by council.

Bladensburg Merger Plan Strikes Snag

Referendum Shows 2 Areas Strongly Opposed; Ballots In 3d 'Questioned'

A proposal to merge the town of Bladensburg with four nearby communities struck a snag in public referendum yesterday when two of the areas voted against incorporation and the count of votes in a third was held up pending investigation of some "questioned" ballots.

Returns last night showed the Sunnybrook community was the only one of the four to favor the merger. There, the incorporation pproposal survived by eight votes.

Both Villa Heights and Rogers Heights voted against incorporation by overwhelming majjorities. Town officials said considerable opposition to the proposal had developed in both areas in recent weeks.

Vote Count Held Up

The count of ballots in Newton village was held up temporarily on the order of Headley Gasch, supervisor of the referendum, who said that the outcome of the vote would not be known until he investigated a number of ballots in question.

He declined to elaborate or to estimate the number of suspected ballots but said it might be several days before the outcome of the vote would be known.

As a result of the vote in Bladensburg, a new town charter and form of government will be effected despite the fact that two of the communities opposed incorporation and will not be taken into the town. Sunnybrook, however, will become a part of Bladensburg and, in the event the Newton village vote favors the proposal, it also will be incorporated.

Would Change Wards

The change in the Bladensburg charter provides for election of a mayor and a town council to replace the present commissioner form of government. However, a revision of ward boundry lines will be necessary since sponsors of the merger had included all four adjacent communities in the four wards provided under the incorporation proposal.

Results of the election in the four communities for which returns were available last night are:

Bladensburg—94 for, 46 against; Villa Heights—12 for, 115 against; Sunnybrook—87 for, 79 against; and Rogers Heights—44 for, and 292 against.

Master Plan For Greater D. C. Voted By Board

Survey Expected To Take 9 Months; Nevius Tract Urged For Cemetery Use

A master plan for the Greater Washington area, to be begun at once, was approved yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, III, NCPPC chairman, estimated it would take from nine months to a year to complete the survey and publication. It will be the first comprehensive study made since 1928, he said.

Originally, Congress was asked to appropriate $95,000 for the master plan, together with a survey of the lowest income group and a slum clearance survey. The final grant, however, was whittled down to $75,000.

Urge Nevius Tract for Cemetery

Earlier, the commission received the assurance of Commissioner W. E. Reynolds of the Public Buildings Administration that the Naval Observatory tract would be immediately studied to determine its suitability as a site for Washington's proposed 20-million-dollar medical center.

Several days ago, the PBA was given the $1,750,000 allocated by Congress for the purpose. An estimated $950,000 is for land acquisition and $800,000 for drawing up plans.

The NCPPC adopted a resolution recommending that the Government use the much-disputed Nevius tract in Arlington County for extension of the Arlington National Cemetery. The tract, choice of the Veterans' Administration as a site for its hospital, was rejected by the House Appropriations Committee.

General Grant said that while the Commission had not recommended the Nevius tract as a veterans hospital site, it had heartily approved the location.

To Act on D. C. 11-Year Plan

Other actions of the NCPPC, taken at the close of a two-day session, included:

1. A resolution of plans to modify the C st. entrance to the new State Department building at 21st and Virginia ave. nw. was approved.

2. Continuance of the current study of Barrier Island in the Anacostia River as a possible airport site was okayed.

3. An 11-year-plan for civil improvements, submitted by the District Commissioners, was received and the Commission promised to make recommendations at its next meeting.

4. A project to eradicate water chestnuts in the Potomac and its tributaries was indorsed.

5. The Commission's next meeting was set for September 18 and 19.

Sailor Killer Of 9 Hangs Self in Brig

Seaman Faced Trial Here Soon For China Rampage

A 21-year-old sailor who killed nine shipmates during an unexplained rampage aboard an LST in China 15 months ago hanged himself yesterday in the brig at the Anacostia Naval Receiving Station.

Smith

The body of William Vincent Smith, a seaman second class, was found dangling from a bar atop his solitary confinement cell at 2:45 a. m. The death noose had been woven together from strips of mattress cover.

Lieut. (j. g.) Joseph A. McDermott, duty officer, said Smith may have hanged himself in the mistaken belief that the day had arrived for his court-martial.

"He probably heard from the grapevine," said McDermott, "that his trial was to begin in August. He must have thought August 1 was the day. But he had until August 19—if he'd known the truth."

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, issued a certificate of suicide in Smith's death.

The Navy ordered a court of inquiry to investigate the suicide of Smith and the probe was launched yesterday.

Smith, whose home was in Asheville, N. C., ran amok with a .30-caliber carbine and a .22-caliber pistol among 30 sleeping shipmates aboard the LST-172 in the Yangtze River of China on April 23, 1946.

Before he was overpowered, Smith had killed nine men, wounded a tenth shipmate and stabbed himself in the abdomen three times. A Navy medical board found that he was "legally responsible" for his act and a court-martial was ordered.

Smith refused to explain what had prompted the mass killing.

Medley Denies Being Forced Out of Va. Senate for Fenwick

Senator William D. Medley yesterday denied that he had been "forced out" of office to make way for Charles R. Fenwick.

Medley, who for the past 14 years has represented Arlington in the Virginia Legislature, in a letter to James J. Gorman, declared that his decision to retire from public office "was solely my own and not concerned nor connected with any person or persons who might seek to be my successor in office."

Gorman had declared both in an address and in an advertisement:

"It may not be that Mr. Fenwick forced Senator Medley's retirement, as many believe, but he certainly tried to take every advantage of it."

"The language used by you," wrote Medley to Gorman, "carries an implication that is without any factual foundation and I feel fully justified in taking exception to such a statement. After almost 14 years of service in the General Assembly I decided to devote my entire time to my law practice and not to seek reelection.

". . . However, I was pleased when Charlie Fenwick announced his candidacy for the Senate for I knew, from my association with him and from our service together in the General Assembly, that he was a man of the highest integrity and ability; that he had a background of wide experience in State and local matters; and that, if elected, he would give Arlington County and Virginia the finest kind of representation."

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 1 (Spl.).—Seaman 1/c Joseph Daniel Brouillette stood silently by today as he was formally arraigned on a first-degree murder charge in the strangulation death of the wife of a Navy lieutenant, Mrs. Julia Katona.

Trial Magistrate J. Ralph Abell held the tall, spare and dark-haired Navy man without bail for the action of the September grand jury. The judge said no plea was entered since the preliminary hearing was waived.

The 22-year-old commissary clerk, who was handcuffed to Sheriff Willard B. Long, was expressionless as the charge against him was read. His counsel, State Senator Paul J. Bailey, was not present, having flown to Florida to investigate another case, according to associates.

The left side of her face was swollen. One corner of her mouth was cut.

The State asked postponement of preliminary testimony until August 21 and a brother obtained Mrs. Ebaugh's release on bond by asking for a writ of habeas corpus.

Investigators said they found Paul L. Ebaugh, chief clerk to the trainmaster at Camden station, lying on the living room floor at the Ebaugh home after Mrs. Ebaugh had called police. He was pronounced dead after being rushed to a hospital.

B-29s Roar Over Washington Following Flight From Tokyo separate military branch, coequal with the Army and Navy.

On August 1, 1907, Capt. Charles De F. Chandler was assigned to form an aeronautical unit in the Army Signal Corps. Since, the AAF grew to a peak strength of 2½ million officers and men and 80,000 aircraft in 1945. Today the AAF has 303,000 men and 25,000 planes, including 10,000 first line ships.

Due over Washington at noon, the B-29s arrived precisely as scheduled and roared over the city at an altitude of 1000 feet. An escort of jet-propelled P-80 Shooting Stars picked up the bombers at Martinsburg, W. Va., about a half hour away from the Capital. The flight was commanded by Lieut. Col. Howard F. Hugos, of San Antonio, Tex.

Included in the crews were two Virginians, Lieut. Vernon V. Kirby, jr., of Richmond, and First Lieut. Kenneth B. Sizer, of Buena Vista; and a West Virginian, Staff Sergt. Muncy Jones, of Welch.

Crews Dog-Tired

The crews, dog-tired, unshaven, and eager for a hot shower and chow, spent the first hour of their record-breaking arrival undergoing customs inspection. A Department of Justice agent, meanwhile, inspected the planes in search of possible stowaways, and aliens among the nearly 100 passengers flown here in the bombers.

The Strategic Air Command disclosed after the flight that a new method of communications, known as the "parasitic rotary array," permitted headquarters to keep in constant voice contact with the bombers. In previous long distance flights, radio communication has been maintained through relay stations along the flight route.

Jets Break Records

The big B-29s dominated yesterday's demonstration here, but other units of the AAF got in a few innings, too.

The P-80 Shooting Stars zipped over Andrews and Bolling Fields at 600 miles an hour. Three of the jet fighters set unofficial speed records in runs to Washington from Miami, Chicago and New York. Air Reservists and the District Air National Guard joined with flying regulars in neatly-executed mass formation flights of various type aircraft.

Bolling Field had on display all kinds of planes and engines, reaching back to the Curtiss and the Wright Brothers at the turn of the century. There were guided missiles, exhibits of virtually everything the AAF has—except its most secret weapons. Thousands queued up to make an inside inspection of the behemoth C-74 Globemaster, the largest transport in service.

'Paradoctors' Land

A demonstration of "paradoctors" landing to treat a flier in a simulated air crash, and rescuing him in a helicopter, together with a fire-fighting exhibition by asbestos-clad crews, featured the Bolling shows.

The Bolling celebration was concluded with retreat parade of 2000 troops. During the review by Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, field commander, and his staff, medals for heroism were presented to an officer and enlisted man.

Capt. Charles A. Taylor of 1650 Howard st. nw. was presented with an oak leaf cluster to the Air Medal for action as a pilot in the Southwest Pacific; Sergt. Frank Jabowski of Indian Head, Md., was given the Air Medal for action as a crew member of a troop carrier in Germany.

Alaska Highway Lands Opened

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug yesterday ordered 2,750,000 acres of land along the Alaska hgy. opened for settlement and said that veterans would have a 90-day preference in applying for the surveyed parts of the area.

The land is a 5-mile strip along the highway, extending from the Yukon boundary to Big Delta, Alaska, and from Tok Junction to Gulkana, Alaska, a distance of 338 miles.

The Interior Department warned, however, that the major part of the land to be opened "is not suited for agricultural homestead use."

The department has reserved for survey areas to be disposed of as small tracts available to veterans for homes, cabins, camps, hotels, taverns, filling stations, and other business uses.

"I see no reason why I should answer any questions," he declared at the police station.

He then retired behind his bubble gum to await the cops' next move.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—A defense witness at the court-martial of Harold E. Hirshberg, charged with maltreating fellow American prisoners of the Japanese, today pictured the defendant as a leader who frequently interceded with the Japs in behalf of ill prisoners.

Lawrence J. Jordan, 27, Chicago, a former Army sergeant and a survivor of the Bataan death march, said he often heard Hirshberg report ill men to the guards so that those who were sick could rest.

The shift will put roads of Page, Warren and Clarke Counties under the Luray residency and Frederick and Shenandoah Counties under the Edinburg residency.

Robert I. Black, president of the Maryland Economic Council, Inc., leading anti-sales tax group, said that the state official's action was "what we expected and now we can go ahead with our court action."

Black, who lives in Norbeck, Md., said the group's attorney, Samuel J. Fisher of Baltimore, would seek a writ of mandamus in the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court at Annapolis "in the next few days" challenging the action of the Secretary of State.

Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone said he declined to certify the petitions containing over 25,000 signatures on the advice of Attorney General Hall Hammond, who had previously declared that the tax law was a "revenue measure," and therefore no subject to a referendum under the State Constitution.

Argentine Ketch Dips Colors Of Columbus to Washington

The Washington Post

Christopher Columbus' colors sailed up the Potomac yesterday—455 years late.

The 50-foot Argentine ketch, El Gaucho, which has retraced Columbus' discovery voyage from Palos, Spain, to San Salvador and then ran off the charts to Washington, tied up at the Capital Yacht Club at 2:15 p. m.

A replica of the flag Columbus carried is flown on special occasions. From its two masts yesterday, the Gaucho was flying the American and Argentine flags.

Its captain is Ernesto C. Uriburu, on leave as first secretary of the Argentine Embassy, and its crew is Miguel A. Britos, Julio A. O. Vasquez and Mano R. Uriburu, brother of the skipper.

Trim, spotless and shipshape, El Gaucho docked at the yacht club, 1020 Maine ave. sw., as the first Argentine pleasure craft ever to dip its colors to the Washington Monument. It's all a wanderlust whim of the skipper, and the odyssey won't be over until it returns to Argentina in February with 28,000 miles of the world's waterways behind it.

Captain Uriburn wanted to follow the Columbus course for several reasons, one of them being literature. Several books and several articles are being written during the cruise—all for publication in America, he said.

The ketch's master cabin bore silver plates presented by the Spanish city of Huelva, where Colembus recruited most of his creew and from the Canary Islands, one of his ports of call.

The El Gaucho, considerably lighter than the Santa Maria's 160 tons, has been at sea since July 28, 1946.

Rockville Wins Right to Keep Present Dump

The controversy over the town of Rockville's dump which has occupied the attention of the Maryland State Legislature and the Montgomery County Circuit Court appeared settled yesterday.

In a five-page written opinion, Judge Stedman Prescott overruled a demurrer to a suit filed against the county commissioners by Blake D. Merson, president of the Montgomery County Refuse Co.

The suit contested the constitutionality of an act passed by the last session of the Legislature which provided that no dump should be operated within 3 miles of any municipality in the county.

By overruling the demurrer, Judge Prescott, in effect, declared the act unconstitutional, lawyers said, and the town dump, owned and operated by Merson, may continue at its present site one and a half miles from Rockville.

With yesterday's favorable court decision, the town will set up the incinerators on the present dump for disposal of burnable trash and nonburnable trash will also be disposed of on the site, F. Barnard Welsh, town attorney, said.

Your Questions on Homemaking

Will you please tell me how to remove lipstick from white cotton and white rayon crepe. Neither has been washed since it was stained. B. O. L.

It's well you haven't washed the garments yet as soap and other alkalis set lipstick stains if applied before they are loosensed with a lubricant. Rub glycerine well into the stains, then launder in the usual manner.

How do you refinish an antique walnut table to a glossy satin finish? We have removed all the varnish and are ready to start the finishing process. Will a filler be needed? F. L. B.

Porous woods such as walnut often need an application of wood filler. Select filler in a color to match the wood. A fine lustrous heat- and water-resistant finish can be given with shellac and wax. Apply the shellac in very thin coats. If necessary, thin it with alcohol. Brush shellac on with the grain of the wood. Rub each coat down lightly after it dries thoroughly with either sandpaper or the finest grade of steel wool. Several coats of shellac should be applied. As many as seven can be used to good advantage if they are thin and are rubbed down. Finish by waxing the table.

An even more beautiful finish can be given fine wood by rubbing it down with oil. This is much more work, however. Various kinds of rubbing oil are sold for this purpose, but the time-honored preference is for raw linseed oil.

The oil must penetrate the wood deeply and evenly and the surface must be smoothed to a dry satiny finish. In order to make the oil penetrate better, some people heat it. (Be careful in doing this as it's inflammable.)

Apply the first coat of oil generously. Rub in with the finest grade of powdered pumice and with felt or a soft cloth. Keep cloth free of lumps of pumice and work with the grain. Each surface should be rubbed at least 15 or 20 minutes, then wiped very clean with a soft rag. This process should be repeated three or four times, allowing an interval of at least two or three days between rubbings. Only a scant amount of oil is used on subsequent applications. Then the piece should be rubbed with oil and rottenstone once or twice. Anywhere from one to five additional coats of oil should then be applied about a week apart, with vigorous rubbing after each coat. By this time the surface should take on a rich, lustrous glow.

Wood finished in this way needs no other treatment. It resists scratching, heat and moisture, and afterward need only be rubbed with oil about once a year. Needless to say, only fine wood is worth all this trouble. But if you treasure your table, you will add greatly to its beauty by giving it this finish.

I have a new washing machine installed in our somewhat damp basement. How can I best retard or prevent rusting along the edges of the enameled surface? R. L. M.

All parts of a new washing machine today are usually well covered by some sort of protective finish. Careful handling of the machine is important so as not to chip or scratch this finish. Drying the machine well after using would be wise. Occasionally rub a little oil over places where rust might form. Never let any acid solution (such as water with vinegar added) stand on the enamel as it may damage it.

Jury Takes Case of Man Killed in Jail

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 1 (AP).—The death of a man who was arrested for drunken driving and involved in a fight at Wicomico County Jail last Saturday night was shunted directly to the grand jury for investigation today when two officers charged with manslaughter waived preliminary hearing.

Attorneys for John J. Harbaugh, 29-year-old Maryland State trooper, and John W. Turner, 62-year-old one-armed jailer, expressed a belief that the grand jury scheduled to convene September 8 will make a complete investigation into the death of Milton H. Jones, 31-year-old automobile dealer and truck line operator.

An overflow crowd of more than 200 was on hand for the scheduled preliminary hearing in the Circuit Court room, reflecting the interest which has been aroused here by the case.

Attorneys for Jones' widow did not participate in the arraignment proceedings today. Yesterday they had appeared before Judge Walter and asserted they have witnesses to show that Jones was "murdered in the jail." They demanded the officers be charged with first degree murder.

Both officers are free on $10,000 bond.

Jones was arrested by Harbaugh on the outskirts of Salisbury Saturday night. The officer and his prisoner were ascending to the jail atop the courthouse in an elevator operated by Turner when Jones swung on Harbaugh as he was lighting a cigarette, Harbaugh said.

There was another scuffle once the jail was reached and Jones was pronounced dead a short time later at Peninsula General Hospital. Harbaugh was treated there for minor injuries.

Two Hanged At Maryland Penitentiary

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (AP).—Two Eastern Shore men—soft-spoken Ross J. Abbott of Deal Island and 18-year-old Weldon Jones of Chance, Md., were hanged early today at the Maryland Penitentiary.

Abbott, 24-year-old partially disabled veteran of 26 months overseas service who received five battle stars, was the first to plunge through the trap. He was executed for the killing of Pansy Lucille Twigg, 18, on a Deal Island beach last summer after she had announced her engagement to another man.

Jones was convicted of the fatal shooting of an Eastern Shore oyster packer, I. Raynor Graham, more than two years ago. He followed Abbott into the whitewashed, brightly-lit execution chamber and saluted his executioners with a jaunty "Hi fellows," as they slipped the noose on his neck.

Abbott shot the Twigg girl under the eyes of horrified relatives and friends during a beach party. He fired his pistol, wounding her, then carried her into the water, held her under, and upon returning the girl to land shot her again.

Afterward, he turned the gun on himself inflicting a superficial face wound. Then he went to a filling station, bleeding, and asked the proprietor: "Take me to the law, I've just shot my woman."

Abbott served with the Ninth Army for more than three years. He was a holder of the Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal, besides the battle stars, and drew a 50 per cent disability pension.

Jones, eldest of 11 children, was convicted of killing Graham outside the latter's oyster house in January, 1946.

Pilot Spots Vorys' Daughter on Rock, Brings Rescuers

Parry Sound, Ont., Aug. 1 (AP).—A Georgian Bay pilot, flying at 400 feet six miles from the mainland here yesterday, spotted the frantic waving of a sweatshirt and brought rescue to two Columbus, Ohio, girls, lost more than 20 hours.

The two girls were Elinor Vorys, 14, and her 13-year-old cousin, Mary Vorys, daughter of Representative John Vorys (R., Ohio). With a light outboard craft, they had set out Wednesday evening.

Minutes after a storm broke, they found themselves on a barren, 80-foot square rock. Their 14-foot craft was smashed and the motor broken.

The rescue was completed when a boat owned by John David Eaton, Toronto department store owner, skimmed through the open water and picked up the half-famished girls, shivering in the cool night air, their clothing soaked.

Bystander Is Hit When Camp Guard Fires at Fugitive

Richmond, Va., Aug. 1 (AP).—Noel Hutcherson, a Patrick County farmer, suffered shotgun injuries in his leg this week when he was struck accidentally by a shot fired by a road camp guard, W. Frank Smyth, jr., superintendent of the State penitentiary, said today.

The mishap occurred, Major Smyth said, when a prisoner attempted to escape. The man a warning from Guard James M. Harman. The guard then fired, but shot scattered and a pellet struck Hutcherson as he was walking along the road with a wheelbarrow. He was taken to a hospital and the pellet removed.

The prisoner was recaptured about an hour later.

WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU, MY GOOD MAN?!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Would You Know How to Drive a Model-T Ford?

Male District Liners (over 30) would have gotten a big kick out of a heated discussion in a downtown cafe last night.

When the talk about new cars turned to the old Ford Model-T, one of the younger members of the group recalled:

"That was the model with two foot pedals, and you pushed the left one half-way in when you wanted the reverse gear."

"Two pedals my eye," snapped an older participant. "It had three pedals, and the one in the middle was reverse."

"Wait a minute," chimed in another, "he's right about pushing that left pedal half way in—because I remember doing it myself."

And that's the way it went for about 10 minutes, with a furious argument raging about the idiosyncrasies of the old Tin Lizzie.

They finally decided that the middle pedal and the left pedal were both used in putting the Model-T into reverse—and with moist eyes they even got around to the early hand-crank models (with the choke outside, and a broken arm for every cold winter morning).

Yes, indeed, those were the days—and you can have them.

HELP WANTED

Diana Wilder (UNion 1815) is scheduled to sing Puccini's "Il Tabarro" this fall for the Washington Opera Guild—but she's going to need some help from you District Liners to do it.

Diana reports that the vocal score for the opera is out of print, and no Washington or Baltimore store has been able to supply her with a copy.

She's willing to buy or borrow. Can you help?

SECRET MESSAGE

Why do I always fall for these things? Lucile Fonda, of Greenbelt, Md., writes:

"Greenbelt is located a little across the District Line, but we're all District Liners. On Saturday, August 2, we'll celebrate our community's tenth birthday, and we're inviting all our neighbors.

"The festivities will last from 1 p. m. to the wee hours. We'll have a parade, a water pageant, a tumbling exhibition, a vaudeville show, and lots of other things.

"But please don't mention this in the paper, as it's a big secret."

PET PEEVE

Charlotte M. Glidden raises a point which must have caused anguish for many of us at various times. She asks:

"What can we do about people who plunk themselves into the aisle seats in movie theaters, and then refuse to stand up to let other people by?"

Well, for one thing Charlotte, we can step on their feet.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three healthy, male kittens—two black and white, one striped." (DEcatur 7173).

CHILD PSYCHOLOGY

This may be another of those oft-told tales, but it's new to me, so I'll pass it along.

It seems that Johnny's mother was forever reminding her son to tuck his shirt-tail into his pants—but it didn't do much good. Five minutes after she spoke to him about it, Johnny had to be reminded again.

But the woman next door had four boys, and their shirt-tails were always neatly tucked in. So one day Johnny's mother asked her neighbor:

"How do you do it? How do you get them to keep their shirt-tails out of sight?" The neighbor smiled, and replied:

"It's really very simple. I just edge the ends of their shirt-tails in lace."

Bingle Says Nix to 'Rabbit' Pix

HOLLYWOOD: Bing Crosby has decided against playing the Jimmy Stewart role in the film adaptation of "Harvey." Crosby feels that after his recent screen portrayals his appearing as a drinking man would be deemed objectionable . . . Pat Hitchcock, the 19-year-old daughter of the Alfred Hitchcocks, will apply for her first citizenship papers shortly and relinquish her British citizenship.

Alan J. Lerner, who wrote "Brigadoon," will collaborate next with Kurt Weill in a musical to be produced by the Playwrights Company . . . Armand Deutsch, who bought the movie rights to Taylor Caldwell's "This Side of Innocence" and organized an independent company to produce it, probably will work at RKO to get experience in every phase of movie work . . . Ben Hecht has written a fairy tale with and for his baby daughter, Jennie. The youngster supplied the title "The Cat That Jumped Out of the Story." When the book is published the cover will bear Jennie's picture from a medallion made by Jean de Botton.

Sam Behrman and Sidney Howard, who were founder-members of the Playwrights Company, were in the same class at Professor Baker's theater course at Harvard. It was Professor Baker's custom after each class was graduated to invite those graduates who had distinguished themselves after the first year to return and deliver a lecture. Howard later confided that he and Behrman were the only members of the class who weren's invited back. After both has been recognized as among the most eminent playwrights in America, Howard was asked whether he ever again met any of the other members of the class. "Yes, only one," said Howard. "He was a croupier at Agua Caliente."

Marie McDonald sat in the MGM commissary and exhibited all the appurtenances attendant upon her success: The gold cigarette case, gold lighter, gold perfume container, gold cigarette holder, gold keys, gold chain and the gold boxes for the pills to ease the digestive and nerve strains which usually result from the fight for stardom . . . Mrs. William Gaxton is hospitalized here . . . Tyrone Power, who is appearing in "Nightmare Alley," entered the Fox commissary dressed for his role. He wore a grimy suit, a soiled, tattered shirt, an oil and dirt-stained cap and his hands, face and teeth were stained with grime. A Zanuck aide greeted him: "Hello, Ty, are you working now?"

Sam Marx, the Metro producer, received a formal inquiry from the War Department military intelligence at Fort MacArthur asking whether he could attest to the patriotism of Lieut. Col. Bruce Downs of the USAF in Germany. Downs had enlisted in the Eagle Squadron of hte RAF, participated in the defense of Malta and was shot down after being credited with downing 20 Nazi planes. He returned to America to organize an air force squardron which he headed in the invasion of Normandy. Downs then was assigned to the Pacific theater, where he fought in China. "Me attest to Downs' patriotism?" was Marx's formal reply to the War Department "Are you kidding?"

Maxwell Anderson, who is writing the movie adaptation of his "Joan of Lorraine" for Bergman, was told of the fine screen performance of John Mills in "Great Expectations" and Laurence Olivier in "Henry V." "Those English actors do all right," Anderson was told. He replied, "Well, look at the writers they have over there—Dickens and Shakespeare."

Universal-International will buy "One Touch of Venus" from Mary Pickford and Lester Cowan . . . Nunnally Johnson, in discussing studio press agents and their relationship with the film columnists said, "We hire these press agents to watch our people, catch them in an indiscretion and phone the papers about it. We're afraid that otherwise the columnists won't find out about us."

It means so much

Your friendship means much more to me . . . Than you will ever know . . . For which my heart is grateful and . . . I want to tell you so . . . You have inspired me to live . . . A better life each day . . . And given me the bravery . . . To turn defeat away . . . You have removed the clouds of rain . . . And ushered in the sun . . . You have encouraged me anew . . . In every dream begun . . . With just your kindly whisper and . . . The softness of your smile . . . You have renewed my faith and hope . . . In everything worth while . . . Your friendship is a miracle . . . That means so much to me . . . Because it overwhelms my heart . . . With love and sympathy.

Britain's 60 Millions Helped Break Force of Greek Inflation

By M. W. Fodor

Athens, Aug. 1.—Pat Reilly, charge d'affaires of the British Embassy in Greece, recently gave a reception for the departing members of the British Economic Mission in Greece.

This signalled the end of a period which started in October, 1944, when British troops landed in Pireaus against the occupying Germans.

This writer remembers when he jumped ashore with the English troops on the pier in Pireaus to be received by an elated and jubilant crowd.

At present Major Gen. Ernest Down commends the British brigade—about 5000 men strong—which has been left in Greece as the British occupational force. Owing to the civil war, these troops will have to stay for an indefinite period. But for all practical purposes British "occupation" as such, can be considered as terminated.

British Bill 600 Million Dollars

Britain spent on Greece more than 600 million dollars during the last three years. About 300 million dollars was spent on the Greek armed forces in the Middle East and Greece. It is not the fault of the British that such meager results can be seen from all that money. The Greek wartime loan of about 184 million dollars was waived by London, placing the still unspent 64 million dollars of this loan at Greece's disposal. Further, a loan of 40 million dollars was granted Greece. Surplus British army and consumer goods brought by the English occupational forces into Greece were handed over to the Greek government, representing a value of 10 million dollars. Approximately four million dollars was spent on public works.

Expenditure on the British forces in Greece is estimated to surpass the 80 million dollar mark. Britain handed over British aircraft and naval units to the Greek air forces and navy, and these British planes and shops form the core of the new Hellenic air force and royal navy.

Had to Fight Inflation

The British Economic Mission, which arrived in January, 1946, in Athens, found a dangerous inflationary situation. Within a few months the drachma was devalued from 2000 drachma to the British pound sterling to 20,000—the present rate of exchange. One of the chief endeavors of the British Economic Mission was to keep the Greek currency as stable as possible. This mission advised that the gold sovereign be kept free from currency control. The British assert that this seemingly vicious policy, while it caused the gold stocks of the Greek National Bank to diminish rapidly, saved Greece from a real inflation. British advisers were attached to the National Bank as well as to the important economic branches of the Administration.

British occupation, however, failed to bring sufficient order into the broken-down communication system of Greece. The British army and economic groups made a thorough study of the damage caused by the Germans—the Griswold mission will undoubtedly greatly benefit by those studies.

The British army engineers have built 85 bridges, of which 50 are still in use. The British also claim that they reopened 1700 miles of roads. Yet traveling in a jeep in Greece causes this writer to think that there must be a considerable discrepancy between what we call a road and what the British say has been repaired by them.

Rebuilt Communications

The British Army reconstructed 600 miles of telegraph and telephone lines, restored 25 submarine cables, costing them the loss of 7 mine sweepers. British army engineers did an excellent job in restoring some of the piers and quays of Salonika, and a less laudable job in the ports of Volos and Pireaus.

The political history of 33 months of British occupation is too close to all of us to be able to judge it without prejudice. Yet one can safely say that one of the greatest wartime figures in British history, former Premier Winston Churchill, is responsible for the shaping of things during the last three years in Greece. The troubles we are going to face in Greece are his bequest.

The statesman Churchill was 100 per cent right when he urged an invasion of the Balkans in 1942. When, however, it came to actual Balkan affairs, he committed one blunder after another. Churchill and his friends were responsible for "inventing" Tito. When his policy failed in Belgrade, he decided that "what happened to me in Yugoslavia won't happen to me in Greece."

Nicest People Monarchists

Had he known more about the Balkans, Churchill would have realized that Yugoslavia has always been an obedient servant of Russia, whether Tsarist or Stalinist, but Greece, in her entire history, has been wary of Slavdom and of her protector, Russia.

When English troops entered Athens in October 1944, the situation roughly was this: 10 per cent of the nicest, richest and most sociable people were extreme Monarchists; 10 per cent of the poorest of the poor were Communists, while the 80 per cent in the middle wanted bread, olives, work and peace.

As Russia allied herself to a Communist minority in the Balkan countries of her sphere of interest, Britain indorsed a minority which was equally unrepresentative in Greece. Moreover, the 10 per cent "Kolonaki" people (those of the finest residential district of Athens) had no choice—they had to go with Britain; the 80 per cent could choose between England or Russia. Russia was skillful everywhere in getting her men into the various liberation movements. With British troops in Greece this process could have been reversed.

Got in With Wrong Crowd

Britain grossly misjudged the actual situation in Greece. The British Embassy and the officers mixed only with the Kolonaki crowd, who are about as related to the actual Greek situation as the few blue-blooded Bostonians or rich Philadelphians are related to the American scene.

Russia did her utmost to exploit all the explosive elements in the tense Greek situation. The British failed to understand the fundamental problems. As a result Greece soon found herself in a civil war which undoubtedly was either fomented by Russia—or was playing into the hands of the Soviets—and which rent the country worse than the United States was divided after the end of the Civil War in 1864.

The elections of 1946 gave a majority to the Royalists, but everybody knows that vote was more against the Communists than for the restoration of the Monarchy. It would have been a wise decision to let the plebiscite be postponed for a year or two. One does not bring back a king into a situation such as exists today in Greece.

What do the Greeks think of the period of British occupation? The extreme Left, inspired by the Moscow radio, blames Britain for all the troubles of Greece. Now the United States and Griswold "orders" the murder of the Leftists, and no longer Churchillite or Laborite Britain. The most disquieting feature of the situation is that those same people who hailed the British as liberators 33 months ago, today speak derisively of the "unfortunate" period of British occupation. In a way, this is not an absolutely unhealthy sign. No self-respecting nation loves occupation, even if it is a friendly one.

Air Safety Board Urges Doubling of Altitude Minimum

President Truman received yesterday from his special Air Safety Inquiry Board a recommendation that the Government double the present commercial airline flying altitude minimum.

The White House made public the recommendations contained in a letter to Mr. Truman from James M. Landis, chairman of the special board.

Nationwide adoption of a minimum standard altitude of 1000 feet clearance above terrain instead of the current 500 feet was recommended by the Landis group.

Rebels' Radio Claims March On Asuncion

Posadas, Argentina, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—The Paraguayan rebel radio "Voice of Victory" announced today that 8500 men, including 1500 infantrymen, were marching on Asuncion, the Parayuayan capital.

It admitted that the rebel capital of Concepcion had been evacuated but claimed that government forces occupying it had been "pocketed" without the rebels "losing a single man or a single weapon."

Capture of the river ports of Ipabobo, Milagro and Antequera also was claimed by the rebel radio. It said that at Ipabobo and Milagro several hundred government men were taken prisoners, including their commanding officers, and that abundant war material had been captured, including the gunboat Coronel Martinez.

In conclusion, the "Voice of Victory" predicted "news of extraordinary importance" shortly.
